walked slowly about the empty echoing rooms on that bright September morning the Professor regarded thoughtfully the needless inconveniences he had put up with for so long the stairs that were too steep the halls that were too cramped the awkward oak mantles with thick round posts crowned by bumptious wooden balls over greentiled fire places Certain wobbly stair treads certain creaky boards in the upstairs hall had made him wince many times a day for twenty odd years and they still creaked and wobbled He had a deft hand with tools he could easily have fixed them but there were always so many things to fix and there was not time enough to go round He went into the kitchen where he had carpentered under a succession of cooks went up to the bathroom on the second floor where there was only a painted tin tub the taps were so old that no plumber could ever screw them tight enough to stop the drip the window could only be coaxed up and down by wriggling and the doors of the linen closet didn't fit He had sympathized with his daughters dissatisfaction though he could never quite agree with them that the bath should be the most attractive room in the house He had spent the happiest years of his youth in a house at Versailles where it distinctly was not and he had known many charming people who had no bath at all However as his wife said If your country has contributed one thing at least to civilization why not have it Many a night after blowing out his study lamp he had leaped into that tub clad in his pyjamas to give it another coat of some one of the many paints that were advertised to behave like porcelain and didn't

"The One" Dog and "The Others": A Study of Canine Character Frances E. Slaughter, 2019-12-19 In The One Dog and The Others A Study of Canine Character Frances E Slaughter intricately explores the complexities of canine personalities through a blend of observational research and anecdotal storytelling Employing a rich literary style that engages both the heart and intellect Slaughter dissects the relationships between dogs and their human companions categorizing them into distinct character types while revealing the emotional depth inherent in these bonds The book situates itself within the larger framework of contemporary animal studies reflecting current debates about anthropomorphism and the ethical implications of pet ownership Frances E Slaughter a renowned animal behaviorist with decades of research experience draws from her extensive fieldwork and deep connection with dogs to craft this insightful text Her background in psychology and her passion for animal welfare provide a unique lens through which she examines canine behavior illuminating the often overlooked nuances of dog character This work is a culmination of her love for dogs and her desire to foster a greater understanding of their emotional lives I highly recommend this book to dog lovers educators and scholars interested in animal behavior and human animal relationships Slaughter's nuanced and compassionate examination not only enhances our understanding of our canine companions but also invites readers to reflect on the moral responsibilities that come with pet ownership
