

Prescriptive Models

- Prescriptive process models advocate an orderly approach to software engineering

That leads to a few questions ...

- If prescriptive process models strive for structure and order, are they inappropriate for a software world that thrives on change?
- Yet, if we reject traditional process models (and the order they imply) and replace them with something less structured, do we make it impossible to achieve coordination and coherence in software work?

Nystrom, William H. Starbuck, 1977 Monographic Series Library of Congress, 1979 A Comparative History of Bank Failures Sten Jonsson, 2019-04-12 Starting with Medici and Fugger and ending with Barings and Royal Bank of Scotland under neo liberal de regulation the author gives an account of how a number of banks failed over a 500 year period The author offers an explanation of the leading ideas about the world and good society at the time and summarizes this narrative using Streeck

Schmitter's three bases for regulation of society: Community spontaneous solidarity, State hierarchical control, and Market dispersed competition. The bank failures are presented in the context of social philosophies of the day: scholasticism, mercantilism, neo liberalism and libertarianism and the changing business practices: Bills of Exchange, rents and financial instruments of various kinds. The dominating explanation of financial crises has been market related. Here the author argues that managerial failures are an important contributor. He demonstrates the failure of management to act on early signals such as existential risk, strategic stress syndrome and lack of proper oversight by top management. The author encourages a return to ethical principles for banks suggesting that his ethical aspect should be at the core of the credit process of banks in the future. With its interdisciplinary approach, this book will be an important contribution to the discussion surrounding bank failures. It will interest any scholar looking at the origins of financial crises and will be particularly useful for post graduate students of economic and financial history, banking, finance and accounting. Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1980. 0000 000000000. 0000, 1995. Management Science, 2001. Environments Tamar Kugler, J. Cole Smith, Terry Connolly, Young-Jun Son, 2008-07-20 On February 27 and 28 of 2006 the University of Arizona held a workshop entitled Decision Modeling and Behavior in Uncertain and Complex Environments sponsored by the Air Force Office of Scientific Research under a Multidisciplinary University Research Initiative MURI grant. The purpose of the workshop was to assemble preeminent researchers studying problems at the interface of behavioral and cognitive science, decision analysis and operations research. This book is a compilation of 14 chapters based on the presentations given during the workshop. These contributions are grouped into four general areas which describe in some detail the challenges in conducting novel research in this field. Part One is concerned with the need for integrating decision analysis and behavioral models. Robert T. Clemen discusses how the fields of behavioral search and decision analysis have diverged over time and makes a compelling case to establish new links between the disciplines. He recommends leveraging lessons learned from behavioral studies within prescriptive decision analysis studies and evaluating the practical impact of those prescriptive techniques in helping decision makers achieve their objectives. Jenna L. Marquard and Stephen M. Robinson address eleven common traps that face decision model analysts and users. An understanding of these traps leads to an understanding of modeling features that either help or hurt the decision making process. The authors link theory and practice by examining a set of case studies across a diverse array of model scenarios and provide a checklist of recommendations for analysts confronted by these eleven traps.
