Principles Of Military Communication Systems:

Principles of Military Communication Systems Don J. Torrieri, 1981 Tactical Communications for the Digitized Battlefield Michael J. Ryan, Michael R. Frater, 2002 Traditional tactical communications systems consist of a number of separate subsystems with little interworking between them and with external sensors and weapons systems Combat net radio CNR has provided the high mobility communications required by combat troops while trunk communications systems have provided high capacity communications between headquarters at the expense of mobility The focus of this book is on new information age technologies that promise to offer seamless integration of real time data sharing creating a single logical network architecture to facilitate the movement of data throughout the battlespace Because the structure of this network is constrained by the fundamental trade off between range mobility and capacity that applies to all communications systems this network is unlikely to be based on a single network technology This book presents an architecture for this network and shows how its subsystems can be integrated to form a single logical network Digital Signal Processing in Communications Systems Marvin Frerking, 2013-03-14 An engineer's introduction to concepts algorithms and advancements in Digital Signal Processing This lucidly written resource makes extensive use of real world examples as it covers all the important design and engineering references Principles of Military Communications for C3I (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence). deployment of two or three often specially designed large satellites large expenses and rather traumatic transition between jumps Despite these undesirable features these systems did not have the required degree of survivability and flexibility
