Private Participation In Health Services A Handbook:

Private Participation in Health Services April Harding, Alexander S. Preker, 2003 Although many countries already make use of private sector services to achieve policy objectives in public health care provision it remains a controversial topic Drawing on a wide range of country experiences this book considers the use of the private sector in the provision of public health services in developing countries in terms of assessing the potential for private sector involvement contracting with the private sector for health services regulating the sector and what to do when key information is not available The Role and Impact of Public-private Partnerships in Education Harry Anthony Patrinos, Felipe Barrera Osorio, Juliana Guáqueta, 2009-01-01 The book offers an overview of international examples studies and guidelines on how to create successful partnerships in education PPPs can facilitate service delivery and lead to additional financing for the education sector as well as expanding equitable access and improving learning outcomes Improving Health Service Delivery in Developing Countries David H. Peters, 2009 Reliable information on how health service strategies affect the poor is in short supply In an attempt to redress the imbalance Improving Health Service Delivery in Developing Countries presents evidence on strategies for strengthening health service delivery based on systematic reviews of the literature quantitative and qualitative analyses of existing data and seven country case studies The authors also explore how changes in coverage of different health services affect each other on the national level Finally the authors explain why setting international targets for health services has been not been successful and offer an alternative approach based on a specific country s experience The book s findings are clear and hopeful There are many ways to improve health services Measuring change and using information to guide decisions and inform stakeholders are critically important for successful implementation Asking difficult questions using information intelligently and involving key stakeholders and institutions are central to the learning and doing practices that underlie successful health service delivery AmeriCorps*NCCC Member Handbook National Civilian Community Corps (AmeriCorps), 1997 Emerging Evidence on Vouchers and Faith-based Providers in Education Felipe Barrera Osorio, Harry Anthony Patrinos, Quentin Wodon, 2009-01-01 While public private partnerships in education in the United States have received a lot of attention research on such partnerships elsewhere has been limited even though such partnerships have been steadily gaining prominence particularly in developing countries Aiming to fill this gap this book presents fresh technically sound empirical evidence on the effectiveness and cost of various public private education partnerships from around the world including voucher programs and faith based schools The evidence on the impact in terms of school performance targeting and cost of public priv Health Policy Research in South Asia Abdo Yazbeck, David H. Peters, 2003-01-01 South Asia is a region of contrasts with impressive technological achievements but also more than 40 percent of the world s poor These contrasts are evident in the health sector which demonstrates large variations in health nutrition and fertility outcomes Health Policy Research in South Asia showcases some of the innovative qualitative and quantitative research methodologies being used in South Asia to provide empirical guidance for health sector reform and policy development The four research areas presented are analysis of inequality expenditure analysis private sector analysis and consumer and provider perspectives Salient themes emerge from the 12 health policy research activities reviewed and emphasize the importance of strengthening local capacity and building ownership Governments can and should distribute subsidies in the health sector more efficiently and effectively The private sector which dominates service delivery in most of South Asia requires a different set of public sector policy instruments Informed consumers citizens can and should play an important role in influencing health service delivery Empirical research can and should provide policymakers with some of the tools needed to improve and monitor the performance of the sector This book will be of interest to health sector policymakers and analysts to academics and students in public health and health economics and to anyone with an interest in the impact of health policy on development
