Richard Selzer And The Rhetoric Of Surgery:

Richard Selzer and the Rhetoric of Surgery Charles M. Anderson, 1989 Anderson provides the context from which Selzer's writing grows and a concept of language adequate to his purposes and accomplishments. He takes a careful look at Selzer's writing to demonstrate that these abstract considerations do tell us why a surgeon would write. The works Anderson examines are Jonah and the Whale, an important early short story, and the first three essays in Mortal Lessons. These examples show the reader exactly how the symbols of literature interact directly with the world and the everyday communications of both writer and reader. According to Anderson, Mortal Lessons is also Selzer's most artistic statement of his own sense of why and how he became a writer. Selzer's books include Rituals of Surgery, Mortal Lessons, Confessions of a Knife, Letters to a Young Doctor, and Taking the World in for Repairs. A Richard Selzer Reader Kevin Kerrane, 2017-07-31

A Richard Selzer Reader Blood and Ink is a career spanning collection including major short stories and essays by the renowned doctor-author. In the 1960s while practicing as a general surgeon and teaching surgery at the Yale School of Medicine, Richard Selzer began publishing unique creative work in magazines such as Harper's and Esquire. By 1985 when he retired as a physician to devote himself completely to writing, Selzer was already recognized as a pioneer in the field of medical humanities. When he died in 2016 as the author of 13 books, his influence was acknowledged by a younger generation of doctor-writers like Abraham Verghese and Atul Gawande. Selzer's unusual style fuses scientific and poetic language. Drawing on favorite readings from the King James Bible to the tales of Edgar Allan Poe, he used this style to convey a sense of awe at the beauty and complexity of the human body even in the midst of suffering. While describing himself as an atheist, Selzer always searched for sacramental moments of courtesy, courage, and grace in medical encounters. Because he often looked critically at the failure of doctors to regard the full humanity of their patients, Selzer's work has become required reading in many medical training programs. A Richard Selzer Reader includes several of the author's most famous essays and stories as well as two dozen selections that have not been collected in his previous books. Chronologically, the material ranges from apprenticeship stories as far back as a high school composition to two odd self-portraits that remained unpublished at the time of Selzer's death. Topically, the material ranges from meditations on the body and on human mortality to reflections on both medicine and writing as serious vocations. Along the way, Selzer celebrates the work of other doctor-writers like Thomas Browne and Anton Chekhov, and in a series of previously unpublished diary entries, he discusses the joys of nature, art, and family as bulwarks against the difficulties of growing old.

The Rhetoric of RHETORIC Wayne C. Booth, 2009-02-09

In this manifesto, distinguished critic Wayne Booth claims that communication in every corner of life can be improved if we study rhetoric closely. Written by Wayne Booth, author of the seminal book The Rhetoric of Fiction (1961), it explores the consequences of bad rhetoric in education, in politics, and in the media. It investigates the possibility of reducing harmful conflict by practising a rhetoric that depends on deep listening by both sides.
