,1961 Historians and the Church of England James Kirby,2016 In the Victorian and Edwardian era history was one of the most prized forms of cultural and intellectual activity it was quite simply the lens through which most of the educated population understood human society Historians and the Church of England uncovers for the first time the extent to which this historical understanding was conditioned by religious ideas and institutions Rejecting the traditional chronology of intellectual secularization it contends that the Church of England in particular remained an active force in the development of scholarship leaving a deep impression on history just as it was becoming a modern discipline It therefore challenges readers to revise their understanding of the history of both historiography and religion in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries

Knowing the Suffering of Others Austin Sarat,2014-07-14 In Knowing the Suffering of Others legal scholar Austin Sarat brings together essays that address suffering as it relates to the law highlighting the ways law imagines suffering and how pain and suffering become jurisprudential facts From fetal imaging to end of life decisions torts to international human rights domestic violence to torture and the law of war to victim impact statements the law is awash in epistemological and ethical problems associated with knowing and imagining suffering In each of these domains we might ask How well do legal actors perceive and understand suffering in such varied domains of legal life What problems of representation and interpretation bedevil efforts to grasp the suffering of others What historical political literary cultural and or theological resources can legal actors and citizens draw on to understand the suffering of others In Knowing the Suffering of Others Austin Sarat presents legal scholarship that explores these questions and puts the problem of suffering at the center of thinking about law The contributors to this volume do not regard pain and suffering as objective facts of a universe remote from law rather they examine how both are discursively constructed in and by law They examine how pain and suffering help construct and give meaning to the law as we know it The authors attend to the various ways suffering appears in law as well as the different forms of suffering that require the law s attention Throughout this book law is regarded as a domain in which the meanings of pain and suffering are contested and constituted as well as an instrument for inflicting suffering or for providing or refusing its relief It challenges scholars lawyers students and policymakers to ask how various legal actors and audiences understand the suffering of others Contributors Montr D Carodine Cathy Caruth Alan L Durham Bryan K Fair Steven H Hobbs Gregory C Keating Linda Ross Meyer Meredith M Render Jeannie Suk John Fabian Witt
