MALACHI S COVE N the northern coast of Cornwall between Tintagel and Bossiney down to the very margin of the sea there lived not long since an old man who got his living by saving seaweed from the waves and selling it for manure The cliffs there are bold and fine and the sea beats in upon them from the north with a grand violence I doubt whether it be not the finest morsel of cliff scenery in England though it is beaten by many portions of the west coast of Ireland and perhaps also by spots in Wales and Scotland Cliffs should be nearly precipitous they should be broken in their outlines and should barely admit here and there of an insecure passage from the summit of the sand at their feet The sea should come if not up to them at least very near to them and then above all things the water below them should be blue and not of that dead leaden colour which is so familiar to us in England At Tintagel all these requisites are there except that bright blue colour which is so lovely But the cliffs themselves are bold and well broken and the margin of sand at high water is very narrow so narrow that at spring tides there is barely a footing there Close upon this margin was the cottage or hovel of Malachi Trenglos the old man of whom I have spoken But Malachi or old Glos as he was commonly called by the people around him had not built his house absolutely upon the sand There was a fissure in the rock so great that at the top it formed a narrow ravine and so complete from the summit to the base that it afforded an opening for a steep and rugged track from the top of the rock to the bottom This fissure was so wide at the bottom that it had afforded space for Trenglos to fix his habitation on a foundation of rock
