Politics And Economics Of Tropical High Forest Management:

Politics and Economics of Tropical High Forest Management Thorsten Treue, 2001 This text provides a case study into the complexity of tropical high forest in Ghana It documents the fact that national forest inventories for a long time yielded results that were either over optimistic about the annual allowable cut or of little use at policy level Yet the most important reasons for deforestation and forest degradation stem from market and legislative failures This has resulted in major government and export revenues foregone and the capacity of the timber industry has become far higher than the annual allowable cut from forest reserves Trees outside forest reserves could fill the gap between the timber demand and the capacity of forest reserves However sustainable management of trees outside forest reserves requires clear incentives for the actual managers to do so These managers are the rural people who also own the land on which the trees grow Yet the state owns the trees Accordingly the challenge is for the state to replace its old exploitative attitude with a viable production oriented approach to off reserve timber resources

Politics and Economics of Tropical High Forest Management Thorsten Treue, 2012-12-06 For the last two decades the loss of in particular tropical rainforest has alarmed the public in the developed parts of the world The debate has been characterised by a lack of understanding of the causes and effects of the process leading to the prevailing reaction being unqualified condemnation Such attitude has even been observed among scientists claiming supremacy to biodiversity conservation Many scientific analyses are available but the basis for sober debates and appropriate actions is still highly insufficient Two recent international initiatives will hopefully lead to improved knowledge of deforestation and forest degradation as they recognise the need for studies to critically investigate those issues This book will provide useful input to the initiatives In my opinion the scientific analyses have not sufficiently promoted the understanding that the fate of tropical forests is first and foremost a concern of the governments of the countries in which the forests are situated Tropical forests may be important to the global environment and their rich biodiversity may be a human heritage But their main importance is their potential contribution to improving livelihood in the countries in question

Biology and Ecology of Norway Spruce Mark G. Tjoelker, Adam Boratynski, Władysław Bugała, 2007-05-29 This is a concise and comprehensive review of the biology ecology and management of Norway spruce Written by 25 experts in the field and richly illustrated it integrates classic and contemporary literature More than 2000 works are cited in the text which highlights basic research and forestry practices in central and Eastern Europe The huge range of topics covered includes the species morphology its physiology and nutrition and its ecology

Protocol for Somatic Embryogenesis in Woody Plants Shri Mohan Jain, Pramod K. Gupta, 2005-05-23 World population is increasing at an alarming rate and this has resulted in increasing tremendously the demand for tree products such as wood for construction materials fuel and paper fruits oils and medicines etc This has put immense pressure on the world's supplies of trees and raw material to industry and will continue to do so as long as human population continues to grow Also the quality of human diet especially nutritional components is adversely affected due to limited genetic improvement of most of fruit trees Thus there is an immediate need to increase productivity of trees Improvement has been made through conventional breeding methods however conventional breeding is very slow due to long life cycle of trees A basic strategy in tree improvement is to capture genetic gain through clonal propagation Clonal propagation via organogenesis is being used for the production of selected elite individual trees However the methods are labour intensive costly and produce low volumes Genetic gain can now be captured through somatic embryogenesis Formation of embryos from somatic cells by a process resembling zygotic embryogenesis is one of the most important features of plants In 1958 Reinert in Germany and Steward in USA independently reported somatic embryogenesis in carrot cultures Since then tremendous progress in somatic embryogenesis of woody and non woody plants has taken place It offers a potentially large scale propagation system for superior clones

Genetic Response of Forest Systems to Changing Environmental Conditions Gerhard Müller-Starck,Roland Schubert,2013-03-14 Changing environmental conditions substantially affect genetic variation and its dynamics in forest ecosystems and various systems of plantations In response to these challenges the present book focuses on the response to stress in terms of case studies which address physiological and genetic characters as well as various metric traits Furthermore a choice of studies is presented which refers to diversity and geographic variation of various species and site conditions respectively In addition genetic resources are characterised and a variety of studies is compiled which address reproduction and migration as well as management aspects Finally a set of studies is presented which focus on forest tree breeding with respect to uncertain climatic futures

Agriculture Handbook ,1997 Set includes revised editions of some issues Natural Forest Management in the American Tropics Francis E. Putz,1991 Tropical Deforestation Jin-Bee Ooi,1993 This study addresses the now familiar problem of topical deforestation from an unfamiliar angle More specifically the author focuses on the time factor in the natural regeneration of the tropical rain forest He examines the economics and practical implications of the very long period of time needed for such forests to regrow and concludes that the tyranny of time makes it unlikely that the process of deforestation in the tropical rain forest countries can be halted Degraded Forests in Eastern Africa Frans Bongers,Timm Tennigkeit,2010 Forest degradation as a result of logging shifting cultivation agriculture and urban development is a major issue throughout the tropics It leads to loss in soil fertility water resources and biodiversity as well as contributes to climate change Efforts are therefore required to try to minimize further degradation and restore tropical forests in a sustainable way This is the first research based book to examine this problem in East Africa The specific focus is on the forests of Ethiopia Tanzania and Uganda but the lessons learned are shown to be applicable to neighbouring countries and others in the tropics A wide range of forest types are covered from dry Miombo forest and afromontane forests to forest savannah mosaics and wet forest types Current management practices are assessed and examples of good practice presented The role of local people is also emphasized The authors describe improved management and restoration through silviculture plantation forestry and agroforestry leading to improvements in timber production biodiversity conservation and the livelihoods of local people      Forest Transition Deficiency Syndrome Emmanuel Ametepheh,2019-01-04 While previous studies focus on lack of enforcement of forest laws poverty and ecological values of forest dependent people coherent studies on people s motivations for forest illegalities and non compliance behavior remain scanty Emmanuel Ametepheh argues that the systematic analysis of cause and effect patterns related to forest management measures and policies through the lenses of the Forest Transition Theory uncovers severe limitations The resulting multi complex stress factors adversely impact and hence manifest in the form of deviant compliance behavior syndrome in the management endeavor of forest fringe people The Author shows that motivations for forest illegalities and associated non compliance behavior is largely an outcome of adverse experiences forest people have been subjected to as a result of historical and contemporary neglects and marginalization in the management endeavor      Managing Natural Wealth Jeffrey R. Vincent,Rozali Mohamed Ali,2010-09-30 The remarkably rich natural environment of Malaysia attracts the interest of both industry and the environmental community Managing Natural Wealth analyzes major natural resource and environmental policy issues in the country during the 1970s and 1980s a period of profound socioeconomic change rapid depletion of natural resources and the emergence of serious problems with pollution Managing Natural Wealth is an important up date to Environment and Development in a Resource Rich Economy Malaysia under the New Economic Policy First published in hardcover in 1997 this pathbreaking book emphasized economics as a source for analyzing the issues involved in environmental and natural resource management in developing countries The access that Jeffrey Vincent and Rozali Mohamed Ali and the contributing authors had to unpublished data and key decisionmakers made their account an essential reference for policymakers and researchers in Malaysia and throughout the globe Managing Natural Wealth includes a review of key developments since the 1990s by S Robert Aiken and Colin H Leigh two geographers with a long standing interest in environmental change in Malaysia and an understanding of the institutional context of its environmental policy that is unmatched in the scholarly community      Dipterocarp Forest Ecosystems Andreas Schulte,Dieter Hans-Friedrich Sch¶ne,1996 The Dipterocarp forests of South East Asia constitute a dominant component of the world s tropical forests As such they are intertwined with a Pandora s box of problems that have plagued the world for decades Over and underdevelopment poverty hunger population growth exploitation of natural resources environmental degradation loss of biodiversity the debt crisis and of late climate change The world community has responded to the crucial role of these forests and the dangers facing them with funds and a myriad of programmers projects institutions conferences and networks Apparently neither a lack of knowledge nor finance constrains the dissipation of sustainable management practices the fate of the world s Dipterocarp forests will certainly depend on the involvement of scientists from many nations and disciplines but will perhaps ultimately rest with local policymakers forest administrators and line foresters Unfortunately these two groups rarely share realms readings or reasoning practical foresters invariably very involved with the challenges of day to day forest management in remote isolated environments may long remain oblivious to scientific developments Traditionally though they do find solutions to problems gain deep insights into forest responses and practical constraints and sometimes even report in semi obscure publications which rarely reach the scientific circuit The editors of the book both experienced forest and soil scientists and practical forest managers have attempted to bridge the gap between the realms of forest science and practice in Dipterocarp ecology management and utilization American Book Publishing Record ,2001 Alternative coca reduction strategies in the Andean Region. ,1993 Forests, Water and People in the Humid Tropics M. Bonell,L. A. Bruijnzeel,2004 Forests Water and People in the Humid Tropics is the most comprehensive review available of the hydrological and physiological functioning of tropical rain forests the environmental impacts of their disturbance and conversion to other land uses and optimum strategies for managing them The book brings together leading specialists in such diverse fields as tropical anthropology and human geography environmental economics climatology and meteorology hydrology geomorphology plant and aquatic ecology forestry and conservation agronomy The editors have supplemented the individual contributions with invaluable overviews of the main sections and provide key pointers for future research Specialists will find authenticated detail in chapters written by experts on a whole range of people water land use issues managers and practitioners will learn more about the implications of ongoing and planned forest conversion while scientists and students will appreciate a unique review of the literature A Review of Dipterocarps Simmathiri Appanah,Jennifer M. Turnbull,1998-01-01 The Common Property Resource Digest ,2001 Promoting Stewardship of Forests in the Humid Forest Zone of Anglophone West and Central Africa Dennis P. Dykstra,Godwin S. Kowero,Albert Ofosu-Asiedu,Philip Kio,1996-01-01 The report is organised into nine chapters The first chapter gives an account of the forestry situation in West and Central Africa with emphasis on vegetation distribution and factors affecting forest management Chapters 2 and 3 highlight past and present silvicultural and forest management practices and also consider management control systems The relevance of biodiversity and the role of non timber forest products are explored in Chapter 4 Inter generational issues socio economic factors influencing sustainable forest management and the relevance of policies and legislation are addressed in Chapters 5 6 and 7 Chapter 8 outlines strategies and incentives which might be adopted to promote sustainable forest management The report concludes with suggestions for research which could be undertaken to fill gaps in knowledge which became apparent in the course of this project Sustainable Forest Management Klaus von Gadow,Timo Pukkala,Margarida Tomé,2012-12-06 During its 200 year history the concept of sustainable forest ecosystem management has been the object of scientific and political discussion with varying degrees of intensity promoted with vehement fervour during periods of social or economic crisis and less intensely during periods of stability This volume which forms part of the book series Managing Forest Ecosystems presents state of the art contributions presented by 9 leading authors from North America Europe Australia and Southern Africa If technical knowledge is a constraint to the implementation of sustainable management this book contains a wealth of information which may be useful to students and practitioners alike The specific target readership includes company management the legal and policy environment and forestry administrators This book s unique feature is its holistic approach which includes ecological socio political and timber supply issues

The Routledge Handbook of the Political Economy of the Environment Éloi Laurent, Klara Zwickl, 2021-10-27

Featuring a stellar international cast list of leading and cutting edge scholars The Routledge Handbook of the Political Economy of the Environment presents the state of the art of the discipline that considers ecological issues and crises from a political economy perspective This collective volume sheds new light on the effect of economic and power inequality on environmental dynamics and conversely on the economic and social impact of environmental dynamics The chapters gathered in this handbook make four original contributions to the field of political economy of the environment First they revisit essential concepts and methods of environmental economics in the light of their political economy Second they introduce readers to recent theoretical and empirical advances in key issues of political economy of the environment with a special focus on the relationship between inequality and environmental degradation a nexus that has dramatically come into focus with the COVID crisis Third the authors of this handbook open the field to its critical global and regional dimensions global issues such as the environmental justice movement and inequality and climate change as well as regional issues such as agriculture systems air pollution natural resources appropriation and urban sustainability Fourth and finally the work shows how novel analysis can translate into new forms of public policy that require institutional reform and new policy tools Ecosystems preservation international climate negotiations and climate mitigation policies all have a strong distributional dimension that chapters point to Pressing environmental policy such as carbon pricing and low carbon and energy transitions entail numerous social issues that also need to be accounted for with new analytical and technological tools This handbook will be an invaluable reference research and teaching tool for anyone interested in political economy approaches to environmental issues and ecological crises
