The Making of International Environmental Treaties Gerry Nagtzaam, 2009. Gerry Nagtzaam contends that in recent decades neoliberal institutionalist scholarship on global environmental regimes has burgeoned as has constructivist scholarship on the key role played by norms in international politics. In this innovative volume the author sets these interest and norm based approaches against each other in order to test their ability to illustrate why and how different environmental norms take hold in some regimes and not others. The book explores why some global environmental treaties seek to preserve and protect some parts of nature from human utilization, some seek to conserve certain parts of nature for human development whilst others allow the reckless exploitation of nature without accounting for the consequences. It tracks the fate of these three underlying environmental norms: preservation, conservation and exploitation using case studies on whaling, mining in Antarctica and tropical timber. The book illustrates how international political battles to shape environmental regimes inevitably result in clashes between these competing environmental norms. This unique study will prove a fascinating read for both academics and practitioners in the fields of international environmental politics and international environmental law.

The Left Libertarianism of the Greens Kire Sharlamonov, 2023-08-03. This book offers a systematic and multifaceted analysis of the Greens on the levels of political philosophy, political concepts, social movement, political parties and political ideology. The originality of the book lies in the determination of the political philosophy of the Greens as left libertarianism. Such a determination of the Greens can already be found in the writings of Herbert Kitschelt but while he only makes a cursory mention of it, this book offers a detailed elaboration of the points of contact between left libertarianism and the Greens. The book also attempts to explain the acceptance of left libertarianism by the Greens with social processes in Western Europe. The emergence of a new middle class and post materialist values At the same time the book examines the relationship between the left libertarian political philosophy of the Greens and the organizational structure of the Green parties their relationship to the state and to democracy Encyclopedia of Global Studies Helmut K.
