Politiques De Loubli Le Genre Humain:

, Collective Memory Jo McCormack, 2010-01-01 Collective Memory examines the difficult transmission of memory in France of the Algerian War of independence 1954-1962. Emphasizing the current lack of transmission of memories of this war through a detailed case study of three crucial vectors of memory: the teaching of school history, coverage in the media, and discussion in the family, author Jo McCormack argues that lack of transmission of memories is feeding into contemporary racism and exclusion in France. Collective Memory draws extensively on interviews with historians, teachers, and pupils, as well as on secondary sources and media analysis. McCormack proposes that a greater work of memory needs to be undertaken if France is to overcome the division in French society that stems from the war. There has been little reconciliation of divisive group memories, a situation that leaves many individuals without a voice on this important subject. Memory battles dominate discussion of the topic as many issues periodically flare up and cannot yet be overcome. Book jacket

The Crime of Destruction and the Law of Genocide Caroline Fournet, 2016-03-16 This highly original work provides a thought-provoking and valuable resource for researchers and academics with an interest in genocide, criminology, international organizations, and law and society. In her book, Caroline Fournet examines the law relating to genocide and explores the apparent failure of society to provide an adequate response to incidences of mass atrocity. The work casts a legal perspective on this social phenomenon to show that genocide fails to be appropriately remembered due to inherent defects in the law of genocide itself. The book thus connects the social response to the legal theory and practice and trials in particular. Fournet's study illustrates the shortcomings of the Genocide Convention as a means of preventing and punishing genocide, as well as its consequent failure to ensure the memory of this heinous crime. The Nation as a Local Metaphor Alon

Confino, 2000-11-09 All nations make themselves up as they go along, but not all make themselves up in the same way. In this study, Alon Confino explores how Germans turned national and argues that they imagined the nation as an extension of their local place. In 1871, the work of political unification had been completed, but Germany remained a patchwork of regions with different histories and traditions. Germans had to construct a national memory to reconcile the peculiarities of the region and the totality of the nation. This identity project, examined by Confino, as it evolved in the southwestern state of Württemberg, oscillated between failure and success. The national holiday of Sedan Day failed in the 1870s and 1880s to symbolically commingle localness and nationhood. Later, the idea of the Heimat or homeland did prove capable of representing interchangeably the locality, the region, and the nation in a distinct national narrative and in visual images. The German nationhood project was successful, argues Confino, because Germans made the nation into an everyday local experience through a variety of cultural forms, including museums, school textbooks, popular poems, travel guides, posters, and postcards. But it was not unique. Confino situates German nationhood within the larger context of modernity, and in doing so, he raises broader questions about how people in the modern world use the past in the construction of identity. The Limits of

Transition: The South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission 20 Years on Mia Swart, Karin van Marle, 2017-08-28 The South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission was a noble attempt to begin to address the continuing traumatic legacy of Apartheid This interdisciplinary collection critiques the work of the TRC 20 years since its establishment Taking the paralysing political and social crises of the mid 1990s in South Africa as starting point the book contains a collection of responses to the TRC that considers the notions of crisis judgment and social justice It asks whether the current political and social crises in South Africa are linked to the country's post apartheid transitional mechanisms specifically the TRC The fact that the material conditions of the lives of many Apartheid victims have not improved forms a major theme of the book Collectively the book considers the unfinished business of the TRC

The Duty of Memory Sébastien Ledoux, 2025-07-01 Within France the expression duty of memory le devoir de mémoire speaks to a complex and ever evolving relationship with the past Emerging in the 1970s this term raised questions about memorialization which dominated public debates in the 1990s highlighting France's entanglements with colonialism and the Holocaust Drawing on a variety of interviews archival sources and data surveys author Sébastien Ledoux spotlights how the trajectory of this term offers a lens for understanding contemporary societies relationship with the past on a global scale

Responsible History Antoon de Baets, 2009 The abuse of history is common and quite possibly once more on the rise Although this is well documented there is no general theory that enables historians to identify prove explain and evaluate the many types of abuse of history In this book the author presents such a theory Reflecting on the responsible use of history the author identifies the duties that the living has toward the dead and analyzes the rights to memory and history necessary to fulfill these duties He concludes his argument by proposing a code of ethics as a guide for responsible historians This work is vital for any historian who wants to oppose and prevent the abuse of history Book Jacket

POLITIQUE AFRICAINE N-102. Passés coloniaux recomposés, 2006-07-01 La France connaît actuellement de vifs débats autour du passé colonial et Politique Africaine entend clarifier les dynamiques et les mécanismes de la production des mémoires grises brouillées et concurrentes institutionnelles ou non de la colonisation et rendre compte de leurs usages pour mettre le débat en perspective Il s'agira de dépasser le cas français et d'examiner ce qui se passe ailleurs en Europe en prenant en compte la dynamique globale de la repentance Il s'agira enfin d'insister sur la nécessité de regards croisés pour observer comment ces mémoires coloniales sont construites ou effacées sur le continent africain lui-même
