Regional Security Ethnicity And Governance:

Regionalism and Regional Security in South Asia Zahid Shahab Ahmed, 2016-04-08 Zahid Shahab Ahmed evaluates the progress of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation SAARC. This study goes beyond economic integration to present a detailed appraisal of cooperation under the overarching themes of economic cooperation, environmental security, human welfare, and cooperation in security matters. According to the author, SAARC is making progress in addressing the myriad of issues on its agenda. The transition from agreements to actions and frequent interactions among the member states has boosted confidence. The progress of SAARC is more evident in the less controversial areas of human security such as poverty alleviation, health and safety, human resources development, and higher education. Notwithstanding enthusiastic commitments reflected in agreements and action plans, there is a gulf between rhetoric and implementation, most notably in sensitive areas relating to traditional security. In the light of the findings of this study, the author proposes that greater cooperation in common human security areas has a potential to pave the way for a cooperation on issues of a contentious nature, particularly terrorism.

Understanding Security Practices in South Asia Monika Barthwal-Datta, 2012-05-04 This book explores the ways in which non-state actors (NSAs) in South Asia are involved in securitizing non-traditional security challenges in the region at the sub-state level. South Asia is the epicentre of some of the most significant international security challenges today. Yet the complexities of the region's security dynamics remain under-researched. While traditional security issues such as inter-state war, border disputes, and the threat of nuclear devastation in South Asia remain high on the agendas of policy makers and academics, both within and beyond the region, scant attention has been paid to non-traditional or new security challenges. Drawing on various case studies, this work offers an innovative analysis of how NSAs in South Asia are shaping security discourses in the region and tackling security challenges at the sub-state level. Through its critique of securitization theory, the book calls for a new approach to studying security practices in South Asia, one which considers NSAs as legitimate security actors. This book will be of much interest to students of security studies, Asian security, Asian politics, critical security studies, and IR in general.

Comparative Regional Security Governance Shaun Breslin, Stuart Croft, 2013-03-01 This book seeks to understand the role of regions in the provision of security and insecurity practices across the globe. Specialists with expertise in the regions they examine present eight case studies and analyses of the Americas, Africa, and the Middle East, South and East Asia, and Europe. Discussing both the state and people in the context of security, this book examines four categories: inter-state security, transnational criminal practices, the drugs trade, human trafficking, migration, proliferation issues, both nuclear and non-nuclear, and issues of domestic state collapse. The book uses an inclusive definition of security to include traditional and non-traditional conceptions and incorporates the use of force and the threat of the use of force as well as issues related to the integrity of peoples. The chapters weave theory and case studies to provide a rich description of a variety of regional governance forms and, where applicable, the absence of them to move beyond regionalism to consider the key determining features of regional governance Comparative Regional Security Governance will be of interest to students and scholars of international security international relations and governance

Living Together After Ethnic Killing Roy Licklider, Mia Bloom, 2013-10-23 This volume attempts to critically analyze Chaim Kaufman s ideas from various methodological perspectives with the view of further understanding how stable states may arise after violent ethnic conflict and to generate important debate in the area After the Cold War the West became optimistic of their ability to intervene effectively in instances of humanitarian disasters and civil war Unfortunately in the light of Bosnia Somalia and Rwanda questions of the appropriate course of action in situations of large scale violence became hotly contested A wave of analysis considered the traditional approach of third parties attempting to ensure that the nation was built on the basis of a ruling power share between the opposing sides of the conflict to be overwhelmingly problematic and perhaps impossible Within this movement Kaufman wrote a series of articles advocating separation of warring sides in order to provide stability in situations of large scale violence His theorem provoked extreme responses and polarized opinion contradicting the established position of promoting power sharing democracy and open economies to solve ethnic conflict and had policy implications for the entire international community This book was previously published as a special issue of Security Studies exciting field with a distinctively forward looking theme focusing on the question what does it mean to think about the future of international security The key assumption underpinning this volume is that all scholarly claims about international security both normative and positive have implications for the future By examining international security to extract implications for the future the volume provides clarity about the real meaning and practical implications for those involved in this field Yet contributions to this volume are not exclusively forecasts or prognostications and the volume reflects the fact that within the field of security studies there are diverse views on how to think about the future Readers will find in this volume some of the most influential mainstream positivist voices in the field of international security as well as some of the best known scholars representing various branches of critical thinking about security The topics covered in the Handbook range from conventional international security themes such as arms control alliances and Great Power politics to new security issues such as global health the roles of non state actors cyber security and the power of visual representations in international security The Oxford Handbooks of International Relations is a twelve volume set of reference books offering authoritative and innovative engagements with the principal sub fields of International Relations The series as a whole is under the General Editorship of Christian Reus Smith of the University of Queensland and Duncan Snidal of the University of Oxford with each volume edited by a distinguished pair of specialists in their respective fields The series both surveys the broad terrain of International Relations scholarship and reshapes it pushing each sub field in challenging new directions Following the example of the original Reus Smit and Snidal The Oxford Handbook of International Relations each volume is organized around a strong central thematic by a pair of scholars drawn from alternative perspectives reading its sub field in an entirely new way and pushing scholarship in challenging new directions

Central Asia and Regional Security Mr P L Dash, Ms Anita Sengupta, Mr Murat M Bakhadirov, 2014-02-15 While security concerns have assumed salience across the globe Afghanistan's proximity to Central Asia has meant that security or perceptions of insecurity dominate the strategic discourse in the region Issues that stand out include the challenges that the Central Asian states will face in terms of stability ethnic tensions radicalization of youth destabilization of commodity flows and energy security and the impact that these could have on Central Asian society However security cannot just be defined in terms of security at the borders It needs to be defined in cosmopolitan terms through an array of issues like movements across borders radicalism within states the sharing of water and various multilateral attempts at combating insecurity This volume is an attempt to focus on some of these issues that reflect on perceptions of security principally from Indian and Uzbek positions It examines shifts over the last two decades from debates on the geopolitical importance of the region from a great game perspective to the salience of new engagements within the international arena

Taxation for Sustained Prosperity Dr. Samuel Tadesse, 2023-02-09 Taxation relates to the policies regulations and processes involved in deciding how much each citizen resident and business should contribute to funding government activities i.e. tax policy It is also about how these contributions should be collected from citizens residents and businesses i.e. tax administration. It also discusses how society ensures that each citizen, resident and business contribute their fair share as determined by the policies and regulations set by the government. Taxes fund the government's operations, programs and activities i.e. fiscal policy. In this context, the government's primary business is delivering public goods, services, infrastructure and security that improve people's living conditions.
