A Study of Erotic Literature in England W. v. Murat, 2019-09-24 The present work fills a gap as it attempts to offer a history of erotic literature published in the United Kingdom The word Study in the title is perhaps a bit exaggerated as the material is largely taken from the now well known bibliographies by Pisanus Fraxi Henry Spencer Ashbee and quotations from the books themselves The time line is WW II Who was the author He may have been Charles Reginald Dawes 1879 1964 who is supposed to have written but not published a text of this or a similar title His profession or his activities are not known he once called himself a writer but library catalogues credit him only with two publications The Marquis de Sade Paris 1927 and Retif de la Bretonne London 1946 privately printed He may have been a popular writer under pseudonyms though Dawes owned a good erotica collection which he willed to the British Museum Library that would explain why the author of this Study if he was Dawes could quote freely from erotic texts which only few of his contemporaries would have had available The main merits of this book are that the author was thoroughly familiar with English and French erotic literature and that he put his material in chronological order and in context The editor added a number of references illustrations and indices of personal names and titles to facilitate navigation

The Erotic Life of Manuscripts Yii-Jan Lin, 2016-01-04 Since the New Testament's inception as written text its manuscripts have been subject to all the dangers of history scribal error emendation injury and total destruction The traditional goal of modern textual criticism has been to reconstruct an original text from surviving manuscripts adjudicating among all the variant texts resulting from the slips additions and embellishments of scribal hand copying Because of the way manuscripts circulate and give rise to new copies it can be said that they have an erotic life they mate and breed bear offspring and generate families and descendants New Testament textual critics of the eighteenth century who began to use this language to group texts into families and genealogies were not pioneering new approaches but rather borrowing the metaphors and methods of natural scientists Texts began to be classified into families tribes and nations and later were racialized as African or Asian with distinguishable textual physiognomies and textual complexions The Erotic Life of Manuscripts explores this curious relationship between the field of New Testament textual criticism and the biological sciences beginning with the eighteenth century and extending into the present While these biological metaphors have been powerful tools for textual critics they also produce problematic understandings of textual purity and agency with the use of scientific discourse artificially separating the work of textual criticism from literary interpretation Yii Jan Lin shows how the use of biological classification genealogy evolutionary theory and phylogenetics has shaped and limited the goals of New Testament textual criticism the greatest of which is the establishment of an authoritative original text She concludes by proposing new metaphors for the field
