Definition

Cooperative education programs are a learning practice inspired by the dual education system of the German-speaking countries. They seek to combine theory and practice, academic and professional knowledge, reflection and application. A consensus about a precise definition of cooperative education is still lacking, and many countries and higher education institutions implement these programs individually (Eames and Coll 2010, 182). A study program can be defined as 'co-operative' (lat. co-operare 'to work together, combine, unite') if the university and a practice partner (e.g. company, business, or social institution) are structurally intertwined, i.e. content and program organization are aligned so that whenever students apply knowledge practically the same knowledge is then reflected theoretically within the university. This requires a conjoined coordination policy between practice partners and university personnel.

In most cases, practical elements comprise from one-third to one-half of a co-operative education program. Depending on the design of a program, practical elements may be integrated at various times: before, during (most commonly), or even after the theory-oriented learning phases at university. The involvement of the practice partner is not necessarily limited to the practical elements but may also include content, methodology, and assessment. Therefore, students are continuously challenged to combine academic expert knowledge with hermeneutics, situational understanding, and reflections on the contradictions between theory and practice. This is also true for study programs which are not part of the humanities, such as engineering or health professions. Cooperative programs require students to meet the academic standards of university education while simultaneously fulfilling the expectations of an economic business or social institution. Their academic training has to satisfy the demands of two addressees.

International higher education uses a variety of descriptors to identify study programs that combine theoretical coursework with relevant practical experience. All these approaches have in common that they demonstrate intersections with

Second To None Seventyfive Years Of Leadership In The Cooperative Education Movement:

Second to None Joseph Ernest Barbeau,1985 The Biotech Business Handbook Michael G. Pappas,2012-12-06 One comment often repeated to me by coworkers in the biotechnology industry deals with their frustration at not understanding how their particular roles fit into their company's overall scheme for developing manufacturing and marketing biomedical products. Although these workers know their fields of specialty and responsibilities very well whether it be in product research and development regulatory affairs manufacturing packaging quality control or marketing and sales they for the most part lack an understanding of precisely how their own contributory pieces fit into the overall scheme of the corporate biotechnology puzzle. The Biotech Business Handbook was written to assist the biotechnologist whether a technician senior scientist manager marketing representative or college student interested in entering the field in building a practical knowledge base of the rapidly expanding and maturing biotechnology segment of the healthcare industry. Because biotechnology in the United States and abroad covers many disciplines much of the information presented in this book deals with the biomedical diagnostic aspects of the industry. Business subjects for the most part unfamiliar to technically oriented people such as the types of biotechnology corporations their business and corporate structures their financing patent and trademark matters their special legal issues and the contributions of their consultants are treated in a manner designed to make them clear and understandable. Journal of Cooperative Education ,1992 Pull Pamela Walker LAIRD,2009-06-30 Redefining the way we view business success Pamela Laird demolishes the popular American self made story as she exposes the social dynamics that navigate some people toward opportunity and steer others away. Who gets invited into the networks of business opportunity? What does an unacceptable candidate lack? The answer is social capital all those social assets that attract respect generate confidence evoke affection and invite loyalty. In retelling success stories from Benjamin Franklin to Andrew Carnegie to Bill Gates Laird goes beyond personality upbringing and social skills to reveal the critical common key access to circles that control and distribute opportunity and information. She explains how civil rights activism and feminism in the 1960s and 1970s helped demonstrate that personnel practices violated principles of equal opportunity. She evaluates what social privilege actually contributes to business success and analyzes the balance between individual characteristics effort innovation talent and social factors such as race gender class and connections. In contrasting how Americans have prospered or not with how we have talked about prospering Laird offers rich insights into how business really operates and where its workings fit within American culture. From new perspectives on entrepreneurial achievement to the role of affirmative action and the operation of modern corporate personnel systems Pull shows that business is a profoundly social process and that no one can succeed alone. Businesses with a Difference Jack Quarter,Laurie Mook,Sherida Ryan,2012-01-01 Market based social economy firms such as social enterprises social purpose businesses cooperatives credit unions and community economic development corporations aim to meet distinct social needs while making money Do these types of businesses have the potential for growth in the modern economy Are they destined to function only in areas where conventional firms cannot achieve a sufficient rate of return Or will the role of social economy organizations change as businesses begin placing more emphasis on corporate social responsibility Building on the popular 2010 collection Researching the Social Economy Businesses with a Difference explores the challenges and opportunities faced by firms that seek a genuine balance between their social and economic objectives Through international case studies including comparative analyses this innovative collection highlights the unique issues that must be addressed when associations are accountable not to investors and shareholders but instead to ordinary people The Clearinghouse Directory ,1991

Route 128 Susan Rosegrant,David Lampe,1992-07-07 Route 128 is a story of idealism and entrepreneurship of ivory tower intellectualism and practical Yankee ingenuity of individual dreams and cooperative efforts the search for new knowledge and the drive to put it to work The book tells how a stretch of highway circling Boston became one of the nation's best known centers of high tech industrial innovation No other region can match Boston's record of productivity and leadership in technology over the past two centuries The fruitful interplay of industry the federal government and higher education in Massachusetts has produced new fields of research novel inventions spin off companies entire new industries new academic disciplines and innovative federal agencies like the National Science Foundation What are the critical ingredients that produce such high creativity What lessons are there for other states and nations interested in the fabled promise of high technology The first book to address the importance of this area Route 128 examines the forces that shaped the region and the role people and events there played in determining the course of the overall relationship among industry academia and government in our society The book is as well a brilliant incisive analysis of the conditions required to encourage innovation in other areas of the world The authors highlight the roles of such ultimate entrepreneurs as Digital Equipment's Ken Olsen and of such academic impresarios as Vannevar Bush of MIT The book also explains why the Massachusetts Miracle appeared to have crashed to earth by the end of the 1980s as the national and regional economies slid into recession and high tech companies laid off thousands Bibliographic Index ,1988 Student Affairs and External Relations Mary Beth Snyder,2002 Building positive relations with external constituents is as important in student affairs work as it is in any other university or college division This issue is a long overdue resource of ideas strategies and information aimed at making student affairs leaders more effective in their interactions with important off campus partners supporters and agencies Editor Mary Beth Snyder vice president for student affairs at Oakland University in Michigan and chapter authors explore the current challenges facing the student services profession as well as the emerging opportunities worthy of student affairs interest C Gary Grace executive director and dean of the University Center of Lake County in Lincolnshire Illinois provides a general introduction to the growth of external partnerships in student affairs work and the role public expectations play in that change Russell P Bumba Jr senior manager for student services for the South Carolina

Technical College System takes a comprehensive look at the historical development of state oversight of higher education. He illustrates the relevance of state coordinating boards for student affairs professionals at both public and private institutions. Changing public expectations of the campus experience demands a fresh approach to long established campus partnerships. Ted Montgomery, director of media relations at Oakland University in Michigan, joins the editor in a frank discussion on building and maintaining excellent media interactions. James E. Moore, assistant vice president for student services at Creighton University in Omaha, Nebraska, argues that student affairs staff should be firmly involved in their institution's decisions on outsourcing of services. He examines the ways that corporate outsourcing should and can add value to student life. Tara Singer, former assistant vice president for alumni relations at the University of Louisville, and Aaron W. Hughey, professor of counseling and student affairs in the College of Education and Behavioral Science at Western Kentucky University, provide concrete suggestions on how student affairs staff can forge effective connections with alumni associations. Partnerships that reach out to the community providing extracurricular learning and career development are also explored. Gary L. McGrath, dean of student affairs at Arizona State University East, highlights the evolving nature of our institutional partnerships with the corporate sector and the many benefits that accrue to students and employers in positive relationships. Northern Michigan University Student Activities and Leadership Programs faculty and staff members David L. Bonsall, Rachel A. Harris, and Jill N. Marczak describe the success of developing a student leadership program that has been integrated into the surrounding campus community. Finally, measuring the success of student programs is also an opportunity for building external partnerships. Marilee J. Bresciani, director of assessment for the division of undergraduate affairs, presents an analysis of the extent to which student affairs currently uses external firms to assist in the assessment of student learning and development and provides guidelines on where and when to seek outside help. Emphasizing the breadth and complexity of external partnerships, relationships, and the importance of managing them well on all campuses, this volume is a valuable and timely resource for student affairs professionals participating in their institution's outsourcing strategies.
