Inventing Atlantic Canada Corey Slumkoski, 2011-03-26

When Newfoundland entered the Canadian Confederation in 1949 it was hoped it would promote greater unity between the Maritime provinces as Term 29 of the Newfoundland Act explicitly linked the region's economic and political fortunes. On the surface the union seemed like an unprecedented opportunity to resurrect the regional spirit of the Maritime Rights movement of the 1920s which advocated a cooperative approach to addressing regional underdevelopment. However Newfoundland's arrival did little at first to bring about a comprehensive Atlantic Canadian regionalism. Inventing Atlantic Canada is the first book to analyse the reaction of the Maritime provinces to Newfoundland's entry into Confederation. Drawing on editorials, government documents and political papers, Corey Slumkoski examines how each Maritime province used the addition of a new provincial cousin to fight underdevelopment. Slumkoski also details the rise of regional cooperation characterized by the Atlantic Revolution of the mid 1950s when Maritime leaders began to realize that by acting in isolation their situations would only worsen.

Roasting Chestnuts Ian Stewart, 1994-11-01. Roasting Chestnuts: The Mythology of Maritime Political Culture is a book about outdated political stereotypes. The Maritime provinces of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia are often regarded as pre-modern hinterland in which corrupt practices and traditional loyalties continue to predominate. While this depiction of Maritime political life may at one time have been largely accurate, this is no longer the case. Employing a variety of indicators, this book argues that a new set of political images is needed to capture Maritime political reality today. What emerges from the analysis is a picture of Maritime politics which no longer differs markedly from that which exists in the rest of Canada. Maritimers no longer exhibit remarkably low levels of political trust and efficacy nor is there a regional political culture which transcends provincial boundaries. In fact, Maritime political elites have been innovators providing radical departures from Canadian political norms. A unique and innovative study, Roasting Chestnuts seeks to demystify Maritime politics and expose the flimsy basis for many of the region's lasting political stereotypes.

Provincial Battles, National Prize? Laura B. Stephenson, Andrea Lawlor, William P. Cross, André Blais, Elisabeth Gidengil, 2019-10-03. In parliamentary systems like Canada, voters directly contribute to the election outcome only in their own riding. However, the focus of election campaigns is often national, emphasizing the leader rather than the local candidate, and national rather than regional polls. This suggests that elections are national contests, but election outcomes clearly demonstrate that support for parties varies strongly by province. Focusing on the 2015 Canadian election campaigns in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, three large provinces with different subnational party systems, Provincial Battles, National Prize evaluates whether we should understand elections in Canada as national wars or individual provincial clashes. The authors draw upon voter and candidate surveys, party campaign behaviour and media coverage of the election to document how political parties vary their messages and strategies across provinces, how the media communicate and frame those messages and how voters ultimately respond The study shows that provincial variations in party support reflect differences in voters political preferences rather than differences in party messages or media coverage A novel and comprehensive study Provincial Battles National Prize is the first and only thorough treatment of the party media and voter aspects of a federal election campaign through a subnational lens The Provincial Political Systems David J.
