The Ayes Have It John

Wanna, Tracey Arklay, 2010-07-01 The Ayes Have It is a fascinating account of the Queensland Parliament during three decades of high drama politics. It examines in detail the Queensland Parliament from the days of the Labor split in the 1950s through the conservative governments of Frank Nicklin, John Bjelke Petersen and Mike Ahern to the fall of the Nationals government led briefly by Russell Cooper in December 1989. The volume traces the rough and tumble of parliamentary politics in the frontier state. The authors focus on parliament as a political forum on the representatives and personalities that made up the institution over this period on the priorities and political agendas that were pursued and the increasingly contentious practices used to control parliamentary proceedings. Throughout the entire history are woven other controversies that repeatedly recur: controversies over state economic development, the provision of government services, industrial disputation and government reactions, electoral zoning and disputes over malapportionment, the impost of taxation in the low tax state, encroachments on civil liberties and political protests, the perennial topic of censorship as well as the emerging issues of integrity, concerns about conflicts of interest and the slide towards corruption. There are fights with the federal government especially with the Whitlam government and internal fights within the governing coalition which eventually leads to its collapse in 1983, after which the Nationals manage to govern alone for two very tumultuous terms. On the non-government side, the bitterness of the 1950s split was reflected in the early parliaments of this period and while the Australian Labor Party eventually saw off its rivalrous offshoot the QLP/DLP, it then began to implode through waves of internal factional discord.

Johannes Bjelke-Petersen Rae Wear, 2002. A saviour to some, reviled by others. Johannes Bjelke Petersen became the butt of jokes and even assassination attempts. His influence spread well beyond Queensland and in the mid 1970s he put an unknown French polisher into the Senate to help rub out the Whitlam government. Young Joh had been a loner who worked hard to overcome crippling childhood polio and the poverty of life on his family's farm. Enduring a long apprenticeship as an opposition backbencher, he finally made it to the top, bringing to his old style autocratic rule a more media savvy appeal to the electorate. As this long-awaited biography reveals, Joh was as cunning as he was ruthless throughout his forty-year political career. Rae Wear analyses in detail his political psyche, his unique leadership style and the reasons for his electoral support, taking into account his Danish immigrant background and lifelong Christian piety. Essential reading for anyone interested in Australian politics, this biographical study explains in depth for the first time Bjelke Petersen's unlikely elevation to the premiership and his ultimate disgrace amid revelations of widespread corruption.

Second Chambers Nicholas Baldwin, Donald Shell, 2013-01-11. Notwithstanding the fact that among the parliaments of the world 38 per cent have Second Chambers, 67 out of 179 Second Chambers themselves have only rarely been the focus of attention from politicians and have almost totally been ignored by academics. This work sets about examining them.

is common and comforting to see public policy as the result of careful craft work by expert officials who recognise a problem identify and evaluate possible responses and choose the most appropriate strategy the policy cycle The reality is more complex and challenging Many hands are involved in policy making not all of them official they are not all addressing the same problem they have different ideas about what would be a good answer and the process is rarely brought to a neat close by a clear decision The development of policy can resemble firefighting with players rushing to react to demands for action in areas that are already in crisis or it can be a less frenetic process of weaving as they search for an outcome which reflects the concerns of all the stakeholders Effective participation in the policy process calls for a clear understanding of this complexity and ambiguity Beyond the Policy Cycle sets policy in this wider context It recognises that participants in the process are drawn from both government and diverse areas outside government and looks not at a model process but rather at how the game is played how issues rise to prominence who is actually doing the work and exactly what it is that they are doing With detailed Australian case studies and examining the implications of recent trends in policy such as the outsourcing of service provision Beyond the Policy Cycle offers students and practitioners a critical and engaged look at the activity of policy that reflects the reality of the policy experience Reading Aboriginal Women's Life Stories Anne

Brewster, 2016-01-07 A wave of life stories and autobiographical narratives by Aboriginal women began in the late 1970s and gained momentum a decade later with the publication of Sally Morgan's My Place 1987 which became a bestseller While some of the books of the first wave focused mainly if not exclusively on the author Aboriginal women's life stories widened over time to include transgenerational histories of the family Reading Aboriginal Women's Life Stories is an important discussion of books that have shaped our understanding of contemporary Indigenous Australian literature Anne Brewster provides an in depth textual analysis of three key titles and situates them in relation to concepts of history race gender family storytelling and Aboriginality in modern Australia Looking back we can recognise now what an extraordinary phenomenon these life stories are and how they have changed understandings of Aboriginality and writing The return of this classic book in a new edition is a welcome reminder that Anne Brewster's careful deeply respectful and informed approach to these writings is as necessary now as it ever was Professor Gillian Whitlock FAHA Beyond Adversity William Park, 2010-07-15
