Evaluation is a controversial and little understood strategy of public governance control and decision making As early as classical antiquity scholars were summoned to court to counsel kings Public policy and program evaluation is a recent addition to the great chain of attempts to use the brainpower of scholars and scientists to further the interests of the state Evaluation scholars are asked to provide retrospective assessments of the implementation output and outcome of government measures in order to effect deeper understanding and well grounded decisions on the part of those in charge of government operations Evaluation is the process of distinguishing the worthwhile from the worthless the precious from the useless evaluation implies looking backward in order to be able to steer forward better Written from a political science perspective Public Policy and Program Evaluation provides an overview of the possibilities and limits of public sector evaluation Evert Vedung examines evaluation as a mechanism for monitoring systematizing and grading government activities and their results so that public officials in their future oriented work will be able to act as responsibly creatively and efficiently as possible Topics discussed include Evaluation Rationality and Theories of Public Management Models of Evaluation Internal or External Evaluation Impact Assessment as Tryout and Social Experimentation Process Evaluation and Implementation Theory The Eight Problems Approach to Evaluation and Uses and Users of Evaluation All evaluation rests upon the idea that perceptions opinions intentions judgments in short everything concerned with the world of human consciousness play such interesting roles in political and administrative action that their functions are worth investigating Through experience humans may learn from past actions The interventions of the modern state are so extensive their execu Evaluating Public Programs Patrick D. Larkey, 2015-03-08 For effective program evaluation it is necessary to specify a counterfactual state i e what would have happened without the program Conventional approaches to program evaluation preoccupied with technical and value issues fail to address directly the need for counterfactual arguments They also fail to recognize the indispensable role of positive theories of technical and behavioral processes in making these arguments In order to understand the impact of the General Revenue Sharing GRS program on the fiscal behavior of municipal governments Patrick Larkey develops and demonstrates an unconventional approach to program evaluation that overcomes these failures Drawing on the positive theories of budgetary decisionmaking processes as well as longitudinal revenue and expenditure data from primary sources the author specifies estimates and tests four bureaucratic process models for each of five city governments receiving GRS funds Using these models to generate complex counterfactual hypotheses he then compares the counterfactual patterns with observed patterns to understand the fiscal effects of GRS Originally published in 1979 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 On
