The Coalition Government and Social Policy Hugh Bochel, Martin Powell, 2016-03-24 How did the UK Coalition Government's policies differ from previous Conservative or Labour Government policies? How did the Liberal Democrats influence them? And what can this tell us about the likely policy direction of the Conservative government elected in May 2015? Responding to the political and social policy changes made between 2010-15, this book considers the relationship between the two coalition parties to provide a critical assessment of how their policies affected the British welfare state, including the impact of austerity. Looking beyond 2015, the contributors consider what the implications of these changes may be for social policy, both the challenges and opportunities which will present themselves in the future.

The Regional Politics of Welfare in Italy, Spain and Great Britain Davide Vampa, 2016-09-15 This book is a study of the increasing territorial variations in the development of sub-national welfare systems that have occurred as an effect of the decentralization of health care and social assistance policies in Italy, Spain and Great Britain. The author examines the political factors that underlie these variations by combining cross-regional and cross-country comparisons using mixed methods. Vampa's main finding is that regionalist parties have played a key role in sub-national welfare building and have used social policy to strengthen their legitimacy in the political struggle against central authorities. In this context, functional political competition between Left and Right has been partly replaced by territorial competition between Centre and Periphery as the main determinant of social policy making. Additionally, mainstream left-wing parties have been torn between maintaining territorial uniformity in social protection and responding to demands for more extensive social services tailored to the needs and preferences of specific regional communities. This book will be of use to academics and policy makers interested in political economy, devolution, decentralisation, welfare and party politics.
