Meditations in Green Stephen Wright, 2020-01-07 One of the greatest Vietnam War novels ever written by an award winning writer who experienced it firsthand Deployed to Vietnam with the U S Army's 106th Airborne Division Spec 4 James Griffin starts out clear eyed and hardworking believing he can glide through the war unharmed But the kaleidoscope of horrors he experiences gets inside him relentlessly He gradually collapses and ends up unstrung in step with the exploding hell around him and waiting for the cataclysm that will bring him home dead or not Griffin survives but back in the U S his battles intensify Beset by addiction he takes up meditating on household plants and attempts to adjust to civilian life and beat back the insanity that threatens to overwhelm him Meditations in Green is a haunting exploration of the harrowing costs of war and yet unhealed wounds the impact of an experience so devastating that words can hardly contain it Walter Kendrick the New York Times Book Review Through passages gorgeous agonizing and surreal Stephen Wright paints a searing portrait of a nation driven to the brink by violence and deceit

Re-writing America Philip D. Beidler, 1991 With his first book American Literature and the Experience of Vietnam Philip Beidler offered a pioneering study of the novels plays poetry and literature of witness that sprang from the United States involvement in the Vietnam War Reviewing the book the journal American Literature declared It is more than just an introductory act It also sets forth what are sure to be lasting types of American literary response to Vietnam and of the scholarly response to the emerging literature of the war. In Re Writing America, Beidler charts the ongoing achievements of the men and women who first gained public notice as Vietnam authors and who are now recognized as major literary interpreters of our national life and culture at large. These writers among them Tim O'Brien, Philip Caputo, Winston Groom, David Rabe, John Balaban, Robert Stone, Michael Herr, Gloria Emerson, and Frances Fitzgerald have applied in their later efforts, says Beidler, many of the hard won lessons of literary sense making learned in initial works attempting to come explicitly to terms with Vietnam. Beidler argues that the Vietnam authors have done much to reenergize American creative writing and to lead it out of the poststructuralist impasse of texts as endless critiques of language representation and authority. With their direct experience of a divisive and frustrating war, a war not of their own making but of the making of politicians and experts, a war of ancient animosities that cost nearly everything for those involved and settled virtually nothing, these writers in many ways resemble the celebrated generation of poets and novelists who emerged from World War I. Like their forebears of 1914-18, those of the Vietnam generation have undertaken a common project of cultural revision to re-write America to create an art that even as it continues to acknowledge the war's painful memory projects that memory into new dimensions of mythic consciousness for other and better times. Beidler fills his book with detailed illuminating analyses of the writers' works which, as he notes, have moved across an almost infinite range of subject, genre, and mode. From David Rabe, for example, have come innovative plays in which overt statements on the traumas of Vietnam. The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel, Streamers, have made way for broader commentaries on sex, power, and violence in American life. In the Boom Boom Room, HurlyBurly, Winston Groom has moved from Better Times Than These, a rather traditional, even anachronistic war novel, to further reaches of rambunctious humor in Forrest Gump. And journalist Michael Herr, whose Dispatches memorably defined a Vietnam landscape at once real and hallucinatory, carried his vision into collaborations on the films Apocalypse Now and Full Metal Jacket. As Beidler notes, the immense price that Vietnam exacted from the American soul continues to draw a plethora of interpretations and depictions. Vietnam authors remind us, in Tim O'Brien's words, of the things they carried. But as Beidler makes clear, they now command us not only to remember but to imagine new possibilities as well.
