P. Cooper,A. Lockwood,1994-06-06 Progress in Tourism Recreation and Hospitality Management Volume Five Edited by C P Cooper and A Lockwood University of Surrey UK This annual publication is a review of leading edge research in tourism recreation hospitality management hotel and catering and related fields with an emphasis on fields of rapid advance international importance and major academic or professional concern Now in its fifth volume Progress has established itself as the leading guide to research trends in this rapidly developing field The opportunity was taken to redesign the structure of Progress in Volume Four and each volume now features substantive papers organised around two themes of key interest in this volume recreation and tourism in Europe and human resource management in the hospitality industry The concluding topical issues and trends section also includes new regular features including a detailed statistical section These alterations reflect the suggestions and comments of users of the earlier three volumes and are designed to enhance the series usefulness to both researchers and professionals Introduction to Commercial Recreation and Tourism John C. Crossley,Scott Rood,Russell E. Brayley,Kate Price-Howard,Andrew Holdnak,2018-03 This text is a revision and update of the sixth edition of Introduction to Commercial and Entrepreneurial Recreation and Tourism and it continues the themes of that edition As in all the previous editions the entrepreneurship theme is a very key orientation of this text We view this industry as having three major components the Travel Industry the Hospitality Industry and the Local Commercial Recreation Industry and we will continue to use the term Commercial Recreation and Tourism to refer to the entire industry The purpose of this edition remains the same as the first four editions to provide an introduction to the scope characteristics management aspects and trends of the commercial recreation and tourism industry It is intended that the book offer a blend of conceptual and practical material to achieve a basic understanding of this huge and diverse industry While some of the content is oriented toward large and established businesses the text also has an entrepreneurial orientation that is particularly applicable to smaller businesses and organizations Hopefully many future commercial recreation and tourism entrepreneurs will gain some useful ideas in these pages As with earlier editions this text will avoid coverage of content that is usually included in other texts such as recreation philosophy leisure behavior theory activity leadership generic recreation programming management theory staff supervision facility planning design legal liability accounting principles etc However we will cover several topics that have received little attention in other commercial recreation and tourism texts These topics include entrepreneurial strategies applied economic concepts business start ups steps of the feasibility study operations management and several specific types of programs in commercial recreation and tourism Finally the content is presented in a way that parallels a logical course sequence That is from general to specific as explained below The first three chapters provide an introduction to the overall commercial recreation and tourism industry including history definitions economic impacts profile of the entrepreneur entrepreneurial strategies economic concepts challenges and general strategies to overcome barriers Chapters 4 through 8 present content about the initiation and management of the commercial recreation and tourism enterprise The information is intended to have general application to the overall industry even though there are specific differences between the diverse sub industries Content includes business start up strategies feasibility studies financing sources financial management marketing operations management and some specific types of programming Chapters 9 through 11 narrow the focus to the three major categories of the industry travel hospitality and local commercial recreation Each chapter examines the status operations trends and opportunities in numerous specific types of industries Another reason to hold this content until the end is to buy time to allow students to investigate these industries on their own as part of a major class project An industry report is a good idea for a project or term paper particularly if the student relates the text content to examples found in the students desired area of career employment We decided to delete the 12th chapter that concluded previous texts The reasons that we decided to do this are that we decided to include industry trends within each of the three prior chapters We also decided that the section of the previous text that focused on academic preparation for students was better left to the faculty members who teach the course The authors updated much of the content particularly the content that related to specific industry data On the other hand conceptual content that remains relevant was changed little Many new references were used for the new material This text was developed for a variety of uses The primary purpose is of course as a textbook for an introductory course in commercial recreation and tourism The text could also function as an introduction to the overall industry for majors in travel tourism or hotel management Whatever the academic use a course instructor should try to supplement the text concepts with local examples Hopefully the text may also be of value to investors and practitioners in specific industries who seek an overview of the entire commercial recreation and tourism industry Although there are many separate sub industries it is very common for success in one industry to be related to events in another industry For example hotels restaurants and shops in a ski destination probably wont fill up if the ski mountain operation is not updated with modern high speed lifts or snowmaking equipment to guarantee a good base for the Christmas season Similarly all these businesses may be very dependent on a single airline company to fly tourists in for their ski vacation It should also be pointed out that the choice of gender nouns he or she throughout the text was made by random selections As the commercial recreation and tourism industry matures males and females seem to be less relegated to stereotypical roles either as staff managers or owners With great enthusiasm three new co authors have joined our team to write this seventh edition They are Dr Scott Rood Dr Kate Price Howard and Dr Andrew Holdnak All three bring exceptional and practical knowledge about the commercial recreation and tourism industry Finally Dr Lynn Jamieson has decided to retire from her many years as one of the two founding authors of this text We will miss her great attitude professionalism and knowledge
