intelligence systems The involvement of the artificial intelligence systems in these offenses may be as perpetrators accomplices or mere instruments The general legal theory proposed in this book is based on the current criminal law in most modern legal systems In most modern countries unmanned vehicles sophisticated surgical systems industrial computing systems trading algorithms and other artificial intelligence systems are commonly used for both industrial and personal purposes The question of legal liability arises when something goes wrong e g the unmanned vehicle is involved in a car accident the surgical system is involved in a surgical error or the trading algorithm is involved in fraud etc Who is to be held liable for these offenses the manufacturer the programmer the user or perhaps the artificial intelligence system itself The concept of liability for crimes involving artificial intelligence systems has not yet been widely researched Advanced technologies are forcing society to face new challenges both technical and legal The idea of liability in the specific context of artificial intelligence systems is one such challenge that should be thoroughly explored

The Criminalization of European Cartel Enforcement Peter Whelan, 2014-08-07 Cartel activity is prohibited under EU law by virtue of Article 101 1 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union Firms that violate this provision face severe punishment from those entities responsible for enforcing EU competition law the European Commission the national competition authorities and the national courts Stiff fines are regularly imposed on firms by these entities such firm focused punishment is an established feature of the antitrust enforcement landscape within the EU In recent years however focus has also been placed on the individuals within the firms responsible for the cartel activity It is increasingly recognized that punishment for cartel activity should be individual focused as well as firm focused Accordingly a growing tendency to criminalize cartel activity can be observed in the EU Member States The existence of such criminal sanctions within the EU presents a number of crucial challenges that need to be met if the underlying enforcement objectives are to be achieved in practice without violating prevailing legal norms For a start given the severe consequences of a custodial sentence the employment of criminal antitrust punishment must be justifiable in principle one must have a robust normative framework rationalizing the existence of criminal cartel sanctions Second for it to be legitimate antitrust criminalization should only occur in a manner that respects the mandatory legalities applicable to the European jurisdiction in question These include the due process rights of the accused and the principle of legal certainty Finally the correct practical measures such as a criminal leniency policy and a correctly defined criminal cartel offence need to be in place in order to ensure that the employment of criminal antitrust punishment actually achieves its aims while maintaining its legitimacy These three particular challenges can be conceptualized respectively as the theoretical legal and practical challenges of European antitrust criminalization This book analyses these three crucial challenges so that the complexity of the process of European antitrust criminalization can be understood more accurately In doing so this book acknowledges that the three challenges should not be considered in isolation In fact there is a dynamic relationship between the theoretical legal and practical challenges of European antitrust criminalization and an effective antitrust criminalization policy is one which recognizes and respects this complex interaction

Enforcing Pollution Control Regulation Carolyn Abbot, 2009-05-18 Monitoring and enforcement issues must be analysed when determining the effectiveness of pollution control regulation and clearly influence choices about how to regulate This book demonstrates how an economic analysis of law enforcement can generate important insights into how best to enforce pollution control regulation It seeks to provide a clear and accessible way into the law and economics literature on enforcement More specifically it uses Gary Becker's deterrence model which by differentiating between two enforcement variables namely the probability of apprehension and conviction and the severity of sanction facilitates a comparison of the effectiveness of different enforcement tools in inducing desirable behaviour As such it provides a valuable analytical tool in considering how best to pursue cost effective enforcement Major themes to be addressed include Becker's deterrence model and expansions thereof reasons for compliance environmental enforcement strategies and the importance of a deterrence threat and formal pollution control law enforcement mechanisms such as prosecution and criminal sanctions administrative mechanisms and civil liability The book argues that in pursuing cost effective enforcement much can be learned from examining enforcement practices in different jurisdictions and to this end the author examines pollution control laws enforcement strategies and sanctions in Australia Canada and England and Wales The book makes an important contribution to existing literature on environmental law enforcement but its value extends beyond this The theoretical framework adopted and the range of issues discussed make it of interest to regulatory and public law scholars more generally

Life

Imprisonment and Human Rights Dirk van Zyl Smit, Catherine Appleton, 2016-12-01 In many jurisdictions today life imprisonment is the most severe penalty that can be imposed. Despite this it is a relatively under researched form of punishment and no meaningful attempt has been made to understand its full human rights implications. This important collection fills that gap by addressing these two key questions: what is life imprisonment and what human rights are relevant to it. These questions are explored from the perspective of a range of jurisdictions in essays that draw on both empirical and doctrinal research. Under the editorship of two leading scholars in the field this innovative and important work will be a landmark publication in the field of penal studies and human rights. Immigration Detention, Risk and Human Rights Maria João Guia, Robert Koulish, Valsamis Mitsilegas, 2016-02-24 This book offers a brand new point of view on immigration detention pursuing a multidisciplinary approach and presenting new reflections by internationally respected experts from academic and institutional backgrounds. It offers an in depth perspective on the immigration framework together with the evolution of European and international political decisions on the management of immigration. Readers will be introduced to new international decisions on the protection of human rights together with international measures concerning the detention of immigrants. In recent years International Law and European Law have converged to develop measures for combatting irregular immigration. Some of them include the criminalization of illegally entering a member state or illegally remaining there after legally entering. Though migration has become a great challenge for policymakers, legislators and society as a whole we must never forget that migrants should enjoy the same human rights and legal protection as everyone else.

Equal Justice and the Death Penalty David C. Baldus, George Woodworth, Charles A. Pulaski, 1990 Race and Ethnicity in the Juvenile and Criminal Justice Systems Jennifer H. Peck, 2018-11-07 Over the last few decades the racial and ethnic composition of the United States has changed dramatically. This seismic transformation has important implications for theory, research, policy and public opinion, perhaps most crucially around the topic of race, ethnicity and our justice systems. Recent national events from Ferguson to the ferocious public debate about racism to media depictions of police violence have reawakened the tense question of race relations in the 21st century. This edited collection of research aims to highlight contemporary issues surrounding the overrepresentation of racial and ethnic minorities throughout both the juvenile and adult criminal justice systems. Our contributors cover both formal sources of social control e.g. police, courts, correction facilities and perceptions and public opinions of the relationship between race, ethnicity and offending behaviors. As the intellectual sphere ignites with fresh debate, old questions are redefined and new ones asked; this publication provides innovative insight into how race and ethnicity interconnect with all aspects of criminology and criminal justice. Furthermore, it helps encourage directions for future research, practice and public policy. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Crime and Justice.
