War and Gender Joshua S. Goldstein, 2003-07-17 Gender roles are nowhere more prominent than in war Yet contentious debates and the scattering of scholarship across academic disciplines have obscured understanding of how gender affects war and vice versa In this authoritative and lively review of our state of knowledge Joshua Goldstein assesses the possible explanations for the near total exclusion of women from combat forces through history and across cultures Topics covered include the history of women who did fight and fought well the complex role of testosterone in men's social behaviours and the construction of masculinity and femininity in the shadow of war Goldstein concludes that killing in war does not come naturally for either gender and that gender norms often shape men women and children to the needs of the war system Illustrated with photographs drawings and graphics and drawing from
