Anthony,2012-11-01 Antarctica the last place on Earth is not famous for its cuisine Yet it is famous for stories of heroic expeditions in which hunger was the one spice everyone carried At the dawn of Antarctic cuisine cooks improvised under inconceivable hardships castaways ate seal blubber and penguin breasts while fantasizing about illustrious feasts and men seeking the South Pole stretched their rations to the breaking point Today Antarctica's kitchens still wait for provisions at the far end of the planet's longest supply chain. Scientific research stations serve up cafeteria fare that often offers more sustenance than style. Jason C. Anthony, a veteran of eight seasons in the U.S. Antarctic Program, offers a rare workaday look at the importance of food in Antarctic history and culture. Anthony's tour of Antarctic cuisine takes us from hoosh, a porridge of meat, fat, and melted snow often thickened with crushed biscuit, and the scurvy-ridden expeditions of Shackleton and Scott through the twentieth century to his own preplanned three hundred meals plus snacks for a two-person camp in the Transantarctic Mountains. The stories in Hoosh are linked by the ingenuity, good humor, and indifference to gruel that make Anthony's tale as entertaining as it is enlightening. American Women Conservationists Madelyn Holmes, 2004-04-20

This collection of biographies describes twelve women conservationists who helped change the ways Americans interact with the natural environment. Their writings led Americans to think differently about their land: deserts are not wastelands, swamps have value, and harmful insects don't have to be controlled chemically. These women not only wrote on behalf of conservation of the American landscape but also described strategies for living exemplary environmentally sound lives during the past century. From a bird lover to a back-to-the-land activist, these women gave early warning of the detrimental effects of neglecting conservation. The main part of this work covers six historical figures who pioneered in their thinking and writing about the environment: Mary Austin, Florence Merriam Bailey, Rosalie Edge, Marjory Stoneman Douglas, Helen Nearing, and Rachel Carson. A later chapter gives portraits of six post-World War II conservationists: Faith McNulty, Ann Zwinger, Sue Hubbell, Anne LaBastille, Mollie Beattie, and Terry Tempest Williams. The work covers a broad range of conservationist concerns, including preservation of deserts and old-growth forests, wildlife protection, wetlands maintenance, self-sufficient sustainable ways of producing food, and pollution control. A conclusion examines where conservationists have picked up after Rachel Carson's Silent Spring (1962) and gives conservation ideas for our time. An appendix lists the published writings of the twelve conservationists. At Home in Nature Rebecca Kneale Gould, 2005-10-24

Gould's attention to the ironies and ambivalences that abound in the practice of homesteading provides fresh and insightful perspective. Beth Blissman, Oberlin College. This luminously written ethnography of the worlds that homesteaders make significantly broadens our understanding of modern American religion. In richly textured descriptions of the everyday lives and work of the homesteaders with whom she lived, Gould helps us understand how the tasks of clearing land, making bread, and building a garden wall were ways of taking on the most urgent issues of meaning and ethics. Robert A. Orsi, Harvard University. This is a fascinating, authoritative, and accessible look at one of America's most important subcultures. If you ever get around to building that cabin in the woods or especially if you don't, you'll want this volume on the bookshelf. Bill McKibben, author of Wandering Home: A Long Walk Across America's Most Hopeful Landscape. Rebecca Gould's compelling book on American homesteading brings the study of the religion-nature connection in the U.S. to a new place. Catherine L. Albanese, author of Nature Religion in America: From the Algonkian Indians to the New Age. Gould provides brand-new data and sheds new interpretive light on familiar figures and movements At Home in Nature is a model of how to seamlessly blend ethnography and history Bron Taylor University of Florida editor of the Encyclopedia of Religion and Nature
