Diamond, 2020-01-31 This photo essay produces a very effective picture of the defeat of British forces in Malaya and Singapore by the Japanese. Highly recommended. Firetrench. In just 10 weeks from 8 December 1941 to mid February 1942 British and Imperial forces were utterly defeated by the numerically inferior Japanese under General Yamashita. British units fought hard on the Malayan mainland but the Japanese showed greater mobility, cunning and tactical superiority. Morale was badly affected by the loss of HMS Prince of Wales and Repulse to Japanese aircraft on 19 December as they sought out enemy shipping. Panic set in as military and civilians withdrew south to Singapore. Thought to be an impregnable fortress, its defenses against land attacks were shockingly deficient. General Percival's leadership was at best uninspired and at worst incompetent. Once the Allied troops withdrew to Singapore it was only a matter of time before surrender became inevitable. To make matters worse, reinforcements arrived but only in time to be made POWs. The whole catastrophe is brilliantly described in this highly illustrated book. The powerful story of a tragedy illustrated with many previously unpublished photographs, this is a highly enlightening text on the Forgotten War. The Bulletin of The Military Historical Society contains an interesting set of well-captioned archive photos showing a period that was among the darkest days for the British Commonwealth during WW2. Military Modelling. The Surrender of Singapore Stephen Wynn, 2017. Until the late 1930s Singapore was noted as a popular stop-off point for wealthy European travelers on their way to countries such as Australia and New Zealand. The outbreak of World War II changed all of that. Major General William Dobbie, who served as the General Officer Commanding Malaya between 8 November 1935 and August 1939, warned that Singapore could be conquered by the Japanese; his concerns went unheeded. Many factors led to the fall of Singapore. These included the arrogance of some senior British military personnel and politicians, a misconception that Japanese soldiers were inferior to their American and Commonwealth counterparts, a belief that Japan would not militarily engage both the United States and Britain at the same time, and the Allies' perception that victory in Europe took priority over defeating the Japanese throughout Asia and the Pacific. Singapore fell to the Japanese in 1942 and was controlled by them for the next three years. During this time Chinese civilians and Commonwealth soldiers were murdered in such incidents as the Sook Ching massacre and the Burma Railway death march. Winston Churchill decided against a public inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the fall of this bastion of empire, and no subsequent British government has seen fit to change that decision. This remarkable book tells the fascinating and largely forgotten story of the fall of Singapore. The Muslim Matrimonial Court in Singapore Judith Djamour, 2021-01-07. This book is an anthropologist's field study of the new court set up in Singapore to deal with matrimonial suits, chiefly divorce among Muslims. The study is based on careful observation of the court in action and analyses in detail the relationship between the reformist aims of the new law and the values and expectations of litigants. The book takes its departure from the argument developed in Dr Djamour's earlier work Malay Kinship and Marriage in Singapore (Athlone Press 1959, paperback edition 1965) and discusses the effect of recent attempts to promote the stability of Muslim marriage Social scientists lawyers students of Islam and those interested in Malayan problems will find in this book the same qualities that distinguished Dr Djamour s previous study lively and sympathetic descriptive powers joined to an ability for clear factual analysis Property and Trust Law in Singapore Alvin See,Yip Man,Goh Yihan,2018-12-18 Derived from the renowned multi volume International Encyclopaedia of Laws this practical analysis of the law of property in Singapore deals with the issues related to rights and interests in all kinds of property and assets immovable movable and personal property how property rights are acquired fiduciary mechanisms and security considerations Lawyers who handle transnational disputes and other matters concerning property will appreciate the explanation of specific terminology application and procedure An introduction outlining the essential legal cultural and historical considerations affecting property is followed by a discussion of the various types of property Further analysis describes how and to what extent legal subjects can have or obtain rights and interests in each type The coverage includes tangible and intangible property varying degrees of interest and the various ways in which property is transferred including the ramifications of appropriation expropriation and insolvency Facts are presented in such a way that readers who are unfamiliar with specific terms and concepts in varying contexts will fully grasp their meaning and significance The book includes ample references to doctrine and cases as well as to relevant international treaties and conventions Its succinct yet scholarly nature as well as the practical quality of the information it provides make this book a valuable time saving tool for any practitioner faced with a property related matter Lawyers representing parties with interests in Singapore will welcome this very useful guide and academics and researchers will appreciate its value in the study of comparative property law
