Freedom Time Anthony Reed reclaims the power of black experimental poetry and prose by arguing that if literature fundamentally serves the human need for freedom in expression then readers and critics must see it as something other than a reflection of the politics of social protest and identity formation Prior to the successful campaigns against Jim Crow segregation in the U S and colonization in the Caribbean literary politics seemed much more obviously interventionist As more African Americans and Afro Caribbean writers gained access to formal political power more writing emerged whose political concerns went beyond improving racial representation appealing for social recognition raising consciousness or commenting on the political disillusion and fragmentation of the post segregation and post colonial moments Through formal innovation and abstraction writers increasingly pushed the limits of representation and expression in order to extend the limits of thought and literary possibility Reed offers a theoretical account of this new black experimental writing which is at once a literary historical development and a concept with which to analyze the ways writing engages race and the possibilities of expression One of his key interventions is arguing that form drives the politics literature not vice versa Through extended analyses of works by N H Pritchard NourbeSe Philip Kamau Brathwaite Claudia Rankine Douglas Kearney Harryette Mullen Suzan Lori Parks and Nathaniel Mackey Freedom Time draws out the political implication of their innovative approaches to literary aesthetics Singing the Bones Caitlin Hicks, Playwrights Union of Canada, 1994

Theology of The Womb Christy Angelle Bauman, 2019-12-06 If it is true that God is a male then His Divinity or Deity is expressed in His masculinity Yet I am a woman and there are parts of my body such as my breasts my vagina and my womb that are telling a story about God that I have never learned or understood This is an exploration of the significance of a womb that must shed and bleed before it can create How will we engage our body which cyclically bleeds most of our life and can build and birth a human soul How will we honor the living womb that lives and sometimes dies within us This is a book about the theology found in the cycle of the womb which births both life and death Every day each one of us is invited to create and every day we make a decision knowing that from our creation can come death or life Women s voices have been silenced for a long time as society and the church has quieted their bodies Will we courageously choose to listen to the sound of your voice the song of your womb and speak for the world to hear
