Susan McHugh, 2019-04-29 Love in a Time of Slaughters examines a diverse array of contemporary creative narratives in which genocide and extinction blur species lines in order to show how such stories can promote the preservation of biological and cultural diversity in a time of man made threats to species survival From indigenous novels and Japanese anime to art installations and truth commission reports Susan McHugh analyzes source material from a variety of regions and cultures to highlight cases where traditional knowledge works in tandem with modern ways of thinking about human animal relations In contrast to success stories of such relationships the narratives McHugh highlights show the vulnerabilities of affective bonds as well as the kinds of loss shared when interspecific relationships are annihilated In this thoughtful critique McHugh explores the potential of these narratives to become a more powerful urgent strategy of resistance to the forces that work to dehumanize people eradicate animals and threaten biodiversity As we unevenly contribute to the sixth great extinction this timely compelling study sheds light on what constitutes an effective response from a humanities focused interdisciplinary perspective McHugh s work will appeal to scholars working at the crossroads of human animal studies literature and visual culture as well as artists and activists who are interested in the intersections of animal politics with genocide and indigeneity

Reading Across the Pacific Robert Dixon, Nicholas Birns, 2010 Reading Across the Pacific is a study of literary and cultural engagement between the United States and Australia from a contemporary interdisciplinary perspective The book examines the relations of the two countries shifting the emphasis from the broad cultural patterns that are often compared to the specific networks interactions and crossings that have characterised Australian literature in the United States and American literature in Australia In the 21st century both American and Australian literatures are experiencing new challenges to the very different paradigms of literary history and criticism each inherited from the 20th century In response to these challenges scholars of both literatures are seizing the opportunity to reassess and reconfigure the conceptual geography of national literary spaces as they are reformed by vectors that evade or exceed them including the transnational the local and the global The essays in Reading Across the Pacific are divided into five sections National literatures and transnationalism Poetry and poetics Literature and popular culture The Cold War and Publishing history and transpacific print cultures

Mitchener, 2021-07-28 On November 20 1943 the U S military invaded the Tarawa Atoll of the Gilbert Islands as part of the first American offensive in the Central Pacific region during World War II This invasion marked more than one first as it was also the introductory test of a doctrine developed during the interwar years to address problems inherent in situations in which amphibious assaults required support by naval gunfire rather than land based artillery In this detailed study Donald K Mitchener documents and analyzes the prewar development of this doctrine as well as its application and evolution between the years 1943 1945 The historical consensus is that the test at Tawara was successful and increased the efficiency with which U S forces were able to apply the doctrine in the Pacific theater for the remainder of the Second World War Mitchener challenges this view arguing that the reality was much more complex He reveals that strategic concerns often took precedence over the lessons learned in the initial engagement and that naval planners failure to stay up to date with the latest doctrinal developments and applications sometimes led them to ignore these lessons altogether U S Naval Gunfire Support in the Pacific War presents an important analysis that highlights the human cost of misinterpreting strategic and tactical realities
