Policing The Fringe A Young Mounties Story:

Hunger, Horses, and Government Men Shelley A. M. Gavigan, 2012-10-15 Scholars often accept without question that the Indian Act 1876 criminalized First Nations Drawing on court files police and penitentiary records and newspaper accounts from the Saskatchewan region of the North West Territories between 1870 and 1905 Shelley Gavigan argues that the notion of criminalization captures neither the complexities of Aboriginal participation in the criminal courts nor the significance of the Indian Act as a form of law This illuminating book paints a vivid portrait of Aboriginal defendants witnesses and informants whose encounters with the criminal law and the Indian Act included both the mediation and the enforcement of relations of inequality

When Grampa was a Mountie Charles Scheideman, 2014-07-01 When Grampa was a Mountie is the third book based on Charlie Scheideman's 27 years of police work in the Interior of BC The first two Policing the Fringe and Tragedy on Jackass Mountain ranked high on the BC bestsellers lists for several months after their release This book is again a collection of short stories some are funny some gruesome and some just tell things the way they were Some accounts reveal the physical and mental hardships a few RCMP members have suffered for their dedication to duty and their willingness to serve in spite of the obvious danger Scheideman's goal in all three books has been to portray to later generations small town police life as closely as possible to the way things really were The longest story Fred Quilt Frame Up is about two RCMP constables at Alexis Creek who were falsely accused of beating a First Nations elder to death The conspiracy to discredit these policemen and the RCMP held tight for years until the key witness's deathbed confession The original accusations became front page stories internationally Scheideman's account sets out the facts that have not been public knowledge up to now

Policing the Fringe Charles Scheideman, 2009-05-28 From the 1960s through the 1980s RCMP Sergeant Charlie Scheideman spent much of his time patrolling the dark corners of the Interior of British Columbia where the citizens would meet the modern criteria for redneck if their veranda collapsed it would kill more than four dogs they think harass is two words and so on Such places weren't much fun to police but they were full of characters many of whom make their way into Charlie's entertaining book Policing the Fringe We meet Walter and Wilbur two Hixon hillbillies who went on a bender and decided it would be fun to stagger out onto the Cariboo Highway with a rifle and hold up passing cars which worked well enough until they held up a motorhome from Alaska that turned out to be better armed than they were We meet Petre the hard working hermit who was cheated out of his savings by three slick talking mining promoters and waited to take his revenge with an axe With wry humour and a policeman's eye for relevant detail Scheideman recounts events that range from the ridiculous to the horrific to the tragic Once he stopped a car in the Fraser Canyon driven by three normally responsible American fishermen who on this occasion were careening wildly from one guard rail to another Their defence They had failed to allow for the added kick of Canadian beer His most searing memory was of waiting for the embers of a burned house to cool enough so he could retrieve the bodies of two small victims while in a nearby house party goes kept right on partying One of the most revealing accounts ever written about policing in small town Canada this book bristles with unforgettable stories about the author's 27 years working on the RCMP's front lines It will give readers new respect for the men and women who patrol Canada's backroads both because of the extremely taxing work they do and the good spirit with which they do it Policing the Fringe William Kelly, Nora Hickson Kelly, RCMP Millennium Projects, 1999

American Book Publishing Record, 2001 Nobody Said No Jeff Sallot, 1979-01-01 Who could have imagined that the RCMP those clean cut men in red steal dynamite and destroy private property break and enter wiretap at will and generally behave as if the law of the land applied to everyone but themselves Jeff Sallot who covered the McDonald Commission of Inquiry Concerning Certain Activities of the RCMP for a year has written a gripping account of the force's illegal activities Burning down a barn in Quebec to prevent separatist meetings breaking into offices and stealing Parti Quebecois membership files intimidating people suspected of FLQ affiliations into informing on their friends and repeatedly opening private mail in flagrant violation of Canada's laws on personal privacy Nobody Said No tells it all It is the story of a police force that took the law into its own hands and of a government that looked the other way Nobody Said No documents in absorbing and dramatic detail the testimony of hundreds of witnesses It shows how the Mounties planned and executed their illegal dirty tricks and tells of the intricate political manoeuvrings undertaken to cover up these activities for so many years Based on official documents and testimony Nobody Said No reads just like a spy thriller except that every fact every detail every dirty trick is true Drawing the Past, Volume 1 Dorian L. Alexander, Michael Goodrum, Philip Smith, 2022-01-04 Contributions by Lawrence Abrams Dorian L. Alexander Max Bledstein Peter Cullen Bryan Stephen Connor Matthew J Costello Martin Flanagan Michael Fuchs Michael Goodrum Bridget Keown Kaleb Knobloch Christina M Knopf Martin Lund Jordan Newton Stefan Rabitsch Maryanne Rhett and Philip Smith History has always been a matter of arranging evidence into a narrative but the public debate over the meanings we attach to a given history can seem particularly acute in our current age Like all artistic mediums comics possess the power to mold history into shapes that serve its prospective audience and creator both It makes sense then that history no stranger to the creation of hagiographies particularly in the service of nationalism and other political ideologies is so easily summoned to the panelled page Comics like statues museums and other vehicles for historical narrative make both monsters and heroes of men while fueling combative beliefs in personal versions of United States history Drawing the Past Volume 1 Comics and the Historical Imagination in the United States the first book in a two volume series provides a map of current approaches to comics and their engagement with historical representation The first section of the book on history and form explores the existence shape and influence of comics as a medium The second section concerns the question of trauma understood both as individual traumas that can shape the relationship between the narrator and object and historical traumas that invite a reassessment of existing social economic and cultural assumptions The final section on mythic histories delves into ways in which comics add to the mythology of the US Together both volumes bring together a range of different approaches to diverse material and feature remarkable scholars from all over the world
