Projects With People The Practice Of Participation In Rural Development:

Projects with People Peter Oakley, 1991 People's participation has begun to influence the practice of development substantially. This study provides an interpretation of how participation occurs, uses case studies to highlight various approaches, and develops elements of a strategy and a methodology. Projects with People, 1993 People, Land, and Water Guy Bessette, 2006 In natural resource management research, best practice implies the participation of community members, research or development teams, and other stakeholders to jointly identify research and development parameters and contribute to decision making. Ideally, the research or development process itself generates a situation of empowerment in which participants transform their vision and become able to take effective action. Used increasingly widely in resource management, this process is known as Participatory Development Communication (PDC). This book presents conceptual and methodological issues. The Effectiveness of World Bank Support for Community-based and -driven Development, 2005-01-01 Participatory approaches that involve local communities in their own development have gained substantial support among international donors over the past quarter century and have become increasingly important in the work of the World Bank. Community participation is an approach to development that can be used with any Bank lending instrument and across sectors. Projects can involve communities in different ways by sharing information, consulting, collaborating, or empowering them. The process of involving communities in project activities is also expected to contribute in most cases to community development. Participatory Approaches to the Conservation and Use of Plant Genetic Resources Esbern Friis-Hansen, Bhuwon Ratna Sthapit, 2000 Mixed-Method Evaluation of Watershed Management Bahram Mohammadi Golrang, 2017-03-23 This volume evaluates technical and social aspects of a watershed management program in the Kush Abad Watershed Basin in Iran. Author Bahram Mohammadi Golrang offers a way forward for a more integrated means to evaluate large-scale rural environmental management projects: their effects on the physical environment, how to engage the public in such projects, and how nearby communities interact with them and perceive their effects. The analysis presented here focuses on land treatment efforts initiated by the Watershed Management Organization of Iran, and evaluation spans the project planning stage through the project's implementation to citizens' perceptions of the project after it was completed. Project planners, especially those in developing countries, will find the lessons in this case study very useful in planning technically sound projects that achieve participation and satisfaction from local populations. Scientists, Experts, and Civic Engagement Amy E. Lesen, 2016-04-01 How do scientists, scholars, and other experts engage with the general public and with the communities affected by their work or residing in their sites of study? Where are the fine lines between public scholarship, civic engagement, and activism? Must academics give back once they collect data and publish results? In this volume, authors from a wide range of disciplines examine these relationships to assess how they can be fruitful or challenging. Describing the methodological and ethical issues that experts must consider when carrying out public scholarship this book includes a checklist for critical factors of success in engagement and an examination of the role of digital social media in science communication Illustrated by a range of case studies addressing environmental issues climate change resource use post disaster policy and education it offers an investigation into the levels and ways in which scholars can engage and how and whether academics and experts who engage in community work and public scholarship are acknowledged and rewarded for doing so by their institutions Also bringing into the debate the perspective of citizens who have collaborated with academics the book offers an exploration of the democratizing potential of participatory action research Concepts and Practices in Agricultural Extension in Developing Countries ,2008-01-01 Rural Development
