Shaping American Telecommunications Christopher H. Sterling, Phyllis W. Bernt, Martin B.H. Weiss, 2006-08-15

Shaping American Telecommunications examines the technical regulatory and economic forces that have shaped the development of American telecommunications services. This volume is both an introduction to the basic technical, economic, and regulatory principles underlying telecommunications and a detailed account of major events that have marked development of the sector in the United States. Beginning with the introduction of the telegraph and continuing through to current developments in wireless and online services, authors Christopher H. Sterling, Phyllis W. Bernt, and Martin B. H. Weiss explain each stage of telecommunications development, examining the interplay among technical innovation, policy decisions, and regulatory developments. Offering an integrated treatment of the interplay among technology, policy, and economics as key factors defining the development of the telecommunications sector in the United States, this volume also provides background material to facilitate understanding of each sector's context for many so-called new issues, problems, and trends, demonstrating origins from years or decades in the past. Careful annotation, documentation, and reference tables enable further research on the topics discussed. This unique multidisciplinary approach provides a balanced view of U.S. telecommunications history in context with relevant economic, legal, social, and technical analyses. As such, it is essential reading for advanced students in telecommunications, needing to understand how the telecommunications industry and service developed to its current form. The volume will also serve as a supplemental text in courses on telecommunications regulation and will be of value to professionals in the field seeking context and background for their daily work.

Telecommunications Sector in Sub-Saharan Africa and Fostering Competition in Telecommunications Services Markets Rachel Alemu,2018-02-02 This study investigates whether the existing regulatory framework governing the telecommunications sector in countries in Sub Saharan Africa effectively deals with emerging competition related concerns in the liberalised sector Using Uganda as a case study it analyses the relevant provisions of the law governing competition in the telecommunications sector and presents three key findings Firstly while there is comprehensive legislation on interconnection and spectrum management inefficient enforcement of the legislation has perpetuated concerns surrounding spectrum scarcity and interconnection Secondly the legislative framework governing anti competitive behaviour though in line with the established principles of competition law is not sufficient Specifically the framework is not equipped to govern the conduct of multinational telecommunications groups that have a strong presence in the telecommunications sector Major factors hampering efficient competition regulation include Uganda s sole reliance on sector specific competition rules restricted available remedies and a regulator with limited experience of enforcing competition legislation The weaknesses in the framework strongly suggest the need to adopt an economy wide competition law Lastly wireless technology is the main means through which the population in Uganda accesses telecommunications services Greater emphasis should be placed on regulating conduct in the wireless communications markets      The Politics of Innovation Mark Zachary

Taylor, 2016-05-04 Why are some countries better than others at science and technology S T Written in an approachable style The Politics of Innovation provides readers from all backgrounds and levels of expertise a comprehensive introduction to the debates over national S T competitiveness It synthesizes over fifty years of theory and research on national innovation rates bringing together the current political and economic wisdom and latest findings about how nations become S T leaders Many experts mistakenly believe that domestic institutions and policies determine national innovation rates However after decades of research there is still no agreement on precisely how this happens exactly which institutions matter and little aggregate evidence has been produced to support any particular explanation Yet despite these problems a core faith in a relationship between domestic institutions and national innovation rates remains widely held and little challenged The Politics of Innovation confronts head on this contradiction between theory evidence and the popularity of the institutions innovation hypothesis It presents extensive evidence to show that domestic institutions and policies do not determine innovation rates Instead it argues that social networks are as important as institutions in determining national innovation rates The Politics of Innovation also introduces a new theory of creative insecurity which explains how institutions policies and networks are all subservient to politics It argues that ultimately each country s balance of domestic rivalries vs external threats and the ensuing political fights are what drive S T competitiveness In making its case The Politics of Innovation draws upon statistical analysis and comparative case studies of the United States Japan South Korea China Taiwan Thailand the Philippines Argentina Brazil Mexico Canada Turkey Israel Russia and a dozen countries across Western Europe      Communication and Technology Lorenzo Cantoni, James A. efficiency support corporate expansion and manage the hearts minds and bodies of twentieth century workers Challenging our longest held understandings of the medium Hughes positions television at the heart of a post Fordist reconfiguration of the American workplace revolving around dehumanized technological systems Among other things business and industry built private television networks to distribute programming created complex CCTV data retrieval systems encouraged the use of videotape for worker self evaluation used video cassettes for training distributed workforces and wired cantinas for employee entertainment In uncovering industrial television as a prolific sphere of media practice Television at Work reveals how labor arrangements and information architectures shaped by these uses of television were foundational to the rise of the digitally mediated corporation and to a globalizing economy

General Purpose Technology, Spin-Out, and Innovation Hiroshi Shimizu, 2019-05-17 This book focuses on exploring the relationship between spin outs from incumbents and the patterns of innovation in general purpose technology Do spin outs really promote innovation What happens if star scientists leave the incumbents and establish a startup to target untapped markets Entrepreneurial spin outs have been recognized as an engine of innovation General purpose technology such as the steam engine in the Industrial Revolution has been considered an engine of growth This book provides new perspectives on how entrepreneurial spin outs shape the patterns of innovation in general purpose technology by integrating theoretical findings in industrial organizations and includes innovation studies and detailed evidence from a longitudinal case study Concretely by longitudinally exploring the technological development of laser diodes in the USA and Japan this study examines how the existence or absence of an entrepreneurial strategic choice for spin outs influences the patterns of subsequent technological development The longitudinal analysis in this book shows that spin outs could hinder the subsequent development of existing technology when that technology is still at a nascent level because the cumulative effects of technological development could disappear if research and development personnel leave their parent firms in order to target different sub markets The findings of this book show that institutional settings designed to promote spin outs do not necessarily promote innovation The book offers novel theoretical insights into the relationship between institutions promoting spin outs and the developments of general purpose technology
