Perceiving Geometry Catherine Q. Howe, Dale Purves, 2005-11-18 During the last few centuries natural philosophers and more recently vision scientists have recognized that a fundamental problem in biological vision is that the sources underlying visual stimuli are unknowable in any direct sense because of the inherent ambiguity of the stimuli that impinge on sensory receptors The light that reaches the eye from any scene conflates the contributions of reflectance illumination transmittance and subsidiary factors that affect these primary physical parameters Spatial properties such as the size distance and orientation of physical objects are also conflated in light stimuli As a result the provenance of light reaching the eye at any moment is uncertain This quandary is referred to as the inverse optics problem This book considers the evidence that the human visual system solves this problem by incorporating past human experience of what retinal images have typically corresponded to in the real world

Crop Circles Werner Anderhub, Hans-Peter Roth, 2002 Throughout the world mysterious patterns have almost magically started appearing in fields baffling the farmers who own the land and the scientists who examine them What are these fantastic geometric figures Who or what is creating them Two journalists specializing in crop circle research provide revealing answers in this bestselling and visually stunning study A spectacular 30 page pictorial which presents an eye catching survey of the continuing phenomenon will fascinate believers and non believers alike with its surprising beauty variety and complexity
