Macroeconomic and Monetary Policy Issues in Indonesia Akhand Akhtar Hossain, 2013-08-15
Following the acquisition of its sovereignty from the Netherlands in 1949, Indonesia experienced serious economic and political problems during the 1950s and 1960s before entering a three-decade long period of rapid economic growth. Hard hit by the financial crisis of the late 1990s, Indonesia undertook a wide range of economic and financial reforms. These reforms served to prepare it well for the 2007-08 global financial crisis through which Indonesia passed relatively unscathed. Drawing on empirical research, this book presents a comprehensive empirical study on the key macroeconomic relations and monetary policy issues in Indonesia. The book analyses monetary, fiscal and exchange rate policies looking at their interactions and impacts on the economy. It demonstrates how important macroeconomic management for monetary and financial stability is to sustained national economic growth and development. Data from the 1970s is compared and contrasted with 1950s data to analyse macroeconomic policies and issues in an historical context. Statistical and econometric techniques are juxtaposed with general empirical results to supplement informative discussion of macroeconomic and monetary developments. This book is a useful contribution to studies on macroeconomics and international development as well as Southeast Asian studies.

Russia and many other transition countries are now facing the challenges of opening up, restructuring and modernizing their economies, which requires addressing numerous institutional weaknesses and supply-side distortions. From a regional perspective, drawing on the experience of other reforming countries, the papers examine these issues. Aspects addressed include the implications of trade and capital flows, the process of labor market reform, financial market development, productivity growth and innovation dynamics. The dynamics of the reform process are also studied in the context of new political economy models.

Welfens, Evgeny Gavrilenkov, 2012-12-06 Russia has embarked upon a difficult process of systemic transformation and economic opening up While the initial strong GDP decline seemed to have ended in 1997 the real development was facing even more difficult problems as output declined sharply after the Ruble and banking crisis of August 1998 inflation started to increase again exports and imports were falling capital flight increasing and unemployment rising There is broad disappointment in Russia regarding the transformation failure in 1998 since so many people had hoped that the end of the Soviet command economy would bring democracy prosperity and international integration While Poland has been able to double per capita income in the 1990s it has fallen by 50% in Russia and this despite considerable IMF involvement and some modest support from other international organizations What were the reasons for transformation failure in the 1990s What are the ingredients for long term sustainable transformation What are the internal and international requirements to avoid a second possibly tragic failure of transformation in Russia An international group of researchers has focussed on these problems during a two year research project financed by the Alfred Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach Foundation A series of papers were presented at workshops in Potsdam Bonn and Moscow in 1999 where this book is devoted to four important issues the Russian transformation crisis the topic of restructuring the need for stabilizing Russia and the requirements for modernizing Russia
