JoAnn Carmin, Stacy D. VanDeveer

Poland Complying With Eu Environmental Legislation:

Poland Gordon Hughes, Julia Bucknall, 1999 The prospect of joining the European Union defines much of Poland's current policy agenda The political and economic consensus in favor of joining the EU as quickly as possible is very strong and indeed most of the adjustments required are likely to be in Poland's immediate interest However the changes required to comply with EU directives in the environment sector involve sustained high levels of investment and significant uncertainty about the timing and nature of the associated benefits The European Commission's Opinion on Poland's application for EU membership acknowledges the severity of the environmental problems in Poland and comments on the challenges the country will have to face especially in the areas of wastewater treatment and air pollution The Opinion concludes that while full transposition of the environmental acquis in Poland could be expected in the medium term effective compliance with a number of pieces of legislation would require sustained high levels of investment and considerable administrative effort Full compliance in areas such as drinking water and certain aspects of waste management could be achieved only in the long term and will necessitate increased levels of public and private investment This paper aims to address some of the issues involved in planning compliance with EU environmental directives The paper has three principal objectives Highlight major issues that Poland is likely to face in implementing the requirements Estimate the total costs of compliance for the public sector in certain key sectors and outline possible options for reducing those costs and Assess where the burden of those costs is likely to fall and the options for financing the investments

Transnational Politics of the Environment Liliana B. Andonova, 2003-11-21 A study of the effect of EU membership on Central and Eastern European environmental policy and the interplay of political incentives and industry behavior that determines policy In Transnational Politics of the Environment Liliana Andonova examines the effect of the European Union EU on the environmental policies of Bulgaria the Czech Republic and Poland Compliance with EU environmental regulations is especially onerous for Central and Eastern European countries because of the costs involved and the legacy of pollution from communist era industries But Andonova argues that EU integration has a positive impact on environmental policies in these countries by exerting a strong influence on the environmental interests of regulated industries With her empirical study of chemical safety and air pollution policies from 1990 to 2000 she shows that export competitive industries such as the chemical industry that would benefit from economic integration have an incentive to adopt EU norms By contrast industries such as electric utilities that primarily serve the domestic market remain opposed to EU environmental standards and must be prodded by their own governments to implement environmental protection measures These differences in domestic interests greatly influence the course of reforms and the adoption of EU standards Transnational Politics of the Environment challenges the current focus on intergovernmental cooperation between East and

West by highlighting the roles of industries transnational norms and domestic institutions in promoting change in environmental regulation It offers a generalizable framework for understanding the politics of environmental regulation in emerging market economies and helps bridge the divide between the study of domestic and international environmental politics

OECD Environmental Performance Reviews: Poland 2015 OECD,2015-04-23 This report is the third OECD review of Poland s environmental performance It evaluates progress towards sustainable development and green growth with a focus on forestry and biodiversity as well as waste and materials management

OECD Economic Surveys: Poland 2008 OECD,2008-06-10 Poland has been catching up with the rest of the OECD more quickly in the past two years but the short term outlook is clouded by strong excess demand pressures and rising inflation This 2008 edition of OECD s periodic survey of the Polish economy
