Inclusive Education in African Contexts

Nareadi Phasha,Dikeledi Mahlo,George J. Sefa Dei,2017-04-13 How do we articulate the possibilities limitations and challenges of inclusive schooling and education in African contexts This book insists that inclusive education cannot be taken for granted Inclusion is neither a natural nor a given educational practice It must be struggled for Bringing a critical perspective to inclusive schooling and education is imperative This book adds to current educational debates with an African lens It engages inclusive education from multiple lenses of curriculum content classroom pedagogy and instruction representation culture environment and the socio organization life of schools the pursuit of equity and social justice and the search for educational relevance It is opined that Africa cannot be left behind in rethinking educational inclusion in ways that evoke critical questions of power equity and social difference The question of learner's identity in terms of class gender sexuality disability language ethnicity and race are equally consequential for African schooling and education When inclusion is understood as wholeness of education then how schooling and education engage the complete learner her his body mind soul and spirit as well as the use of local community and Indigenous knowledges in teaching and learning become relevant Inclusion stands the risk of liberal educational agendas that simply tinker or toy with schooling and education and hardly embrace the challenge of educational change What we need is a fundamental structural change that ensures schooling and education embraces difference while grappling with the teaching of Indigeneity decolonization and resistance

Policy, Discourse and Rhetoric Marie Lall, 2012-09-11 This is not yet another book on New Labour and neoliberalism but the only book which uses policy case study evidence to show the rhetorical nature of the commitment New Labour appeared to have been making to education Unlike other books on that era this one aims to review New Labour's time in government through specific policy texts This book reviews some of the major policy shifts in the education sector analysing selected case study policies in order to articulate dominant discourses in recent policy making which have helped establish a particular hegemony The book's originality lies in its policy analysis and case study base whereby key policy texts across different sectors are dissected using the policy cycle framework allowing for an in depth analysis of the policy discourse as well as a discussion on how the neoliberal agenda was reflected and or promoted Education is often only perceived as limited to policies relating to schools and higher education However the book seeks to demonstrate that education as a sector is a much broader field and therefore the areas covered include key policies in citizenship and youth work widening participation in higher education the place of inclusive education in the curriculum the undergraduate medical curriculum and the effect of the Cox review on creativity In effect the broad selection of sectors demonstrates that New Labour's education policies were not only detrimental in traditional education settings but also affected areas such as medicine and the media which are of importance to those who no longer are affected by what happens in institutions of learning and teaching The book is consequently relevant for a much wider audience beyond the education community
