The Politics of Globalization in the United States Edward S. Cohen, 2001-03-02 From the conflicts over the North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA and the World Trade Organization to concern over illegal immigration and debates over the official status of the English language politicians and citizens have been reconsidering fundamental questions about American society's role in a changing global arena Applying concepts derived from the study of international and comparative politics Edward S. Cohen offers a systematic analysis of the impact of globalization on United States domestic politics Focusing on the obvious issue of trade and the less obvious areas of immigration and language policy Cohen demonstrates that globalization is both the cause and result of a new relationship between the government corporations and citizens within the United States Globalization has led to the formation of new political divisions and coalitions and has caused deepening conflicts over the purposes and goals of American politics The outcome of these conflicts Cohen argues will determine the future of American political life Showing that globalization has transformed the priorities and responsibilities of sovereign states rather than hastening their demise the book will interest politicians policymakers and students looking for a discussion of globalization that is grounded in the recent political history of the United States Amici Curiae and Strategic Behavior in State Supreme Courts Scott A. Comparato, 2003-09-30

Applying strategic approaches to both interest groups as amici curiae and state supreme court justices Comparato investigates the influence of judicial retention methods and the ballot initiative on their behavior The results demonstrate that they behave strategically attempting to achieve their goals within the confines of the institutional setting What impact do state level institutions have on the behavior of state supreme court justices and interest groups participating as amici curiae in those courts Specifically is the information provided by interest groups conditioned on the judicial retention system or whether the state uses the ballot initiative and does that information impact the decision making process of the justices Comparato answers these questions by employing strategic theories of judicial and group behavior with groups motivated by the attainment of policy and group maintenance and state supreme court justices motivated by policy and the continued maintenance of their position on the court He argues that the information provided in amicus curiae briefs allows both groups and state supreme court justices to achieve their respective goals In order to answer these questions Comparato analyzes litigant and amicus curiae briefs as well as judicial decisions from seven state supreme courts to evaluate the effects of state level institutions on the types of information provided to state supreme court justices and how those justices respond to that information The results suggest that interest groups do behave strategically providing information to justices that they believe will be useful in helping the justices retain their seats on the court and achieve their desired policy outcomes There is also support for the expectation that the information provided by litigants and amici as well as the retention method have a direct impact on the decision making of justices Health Care Reform and the Battle for the Body Politic Dan E. Beauchamp, 1996 Discusses health care reform as a strategy for dealing with the failures of politics not just the failures of the health care market As former Deputy Commissioner for Policy and Planning for New York State Department of Health the author presents a narrative about his work to develop a universal health care and insurance plan for the State Papers Relating to the Foreign Relations of the United States United States. Department of State, 1930 Principles of Politics from the Viewpoint of the American Citizen Jeremiah Whipple Jenks, 1909 Interest Group Politics in the Northeastern States Ronald J.
