Like Wildfire Sean Patrick O'Rourke, Lesli K. Pace, 2020-06-02 The sit ins of the American civil rights movement were extraordinary acts of dissent in an age marked by protest By sitting in at whites only lunch counters libraries beaches swimming pools skating rinks and churches young African Americans and their allies put their lives on the line fully aware that their actions would almost inevitably incite hateful violent responses from entrenched and increasingly desperate white segregationists And yet they did so in great numbers most estimates suggest that in 1960 alone more than seventy thousand young people participated in sit ins across the American South and more than three thousand were arrested The simplicity and purity of the act of sitting in coupled with the dignity and grace exhibited by participants lent to the sit in movement's sanctity and peaceful power In Like Wildfire editors Sean Patrick O'Rourke and Lesli K Pace seek to clarify and analyze the power of civil rights sit ins as rhetorical acts persuasive campaigns designed to alter perceptions of apartheid social structures and to change the attitudes laws and policies that supported those structures These cohesive essays from leading scholars offer a new appraisal of the origins growth and legacy of the sit ins which has gone largely ignored in scholarly literature The authors examine different forms of sitting in and the evolution of the rhetorical dynamics of sit in protests detailing the organizational strategies they employed and connecting them to later protests By focusing on the persuasive power of demanding space the contributors articulate the ways in which the protestors battle for basic civil rights shaped social practices laws and the national dialogue O'Rourke and Pace maintain that the legacies of the civil rights sit ins have been many complicated and at times undervalued Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places Lynne Dixon, Alison Hales, 2013-12-04 A much needed and delightful book It shows how history can be taught with the meaningful experiences of each child at its centre making connections between the child the locality and community the national and global past and concepts of time Throughout the authors empower teachers to adopt their philosophy by showing them how to plan select resources and strategies and reflect on ideas and case studies Hilary Cooper Emeritus professor of history and pedagogy The University of Cumbria UK Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places puts the local environment and community at the heart of history showing how it can be used as the context for successful history teaching across the primary age range It considers how to develop children's concepts and skills through local history how to link local national and global aspects of history and helps you develop your own historical knowledge understanding and confidence in teaching the subject Practical topics explored include Investigating children's cultural and geographical roots through fieldwork Finding and visiting local museums archives and heritage sights Choosing and using resources Using significant people events and buildings to link with national history Environmental education and sustainable development through local history Understanding the links between history and everyday life Planning and assessing history Based on the latest research and practice in the field Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places offers an exciting template of creative ideas and activities to show teachers how they can make history relevant to all children
