Soviet Salvage Catherine Walworth, 2017-10-10 In Soviet Salvage Catherine Walworth explores how artists on the margins of the Constructivist movement of the 1920s rejected elitist media and imagined a new world knitting together avant garde art imperial castoffs and everyday life Applying anthropological models borrowed from Claude Lévi Strauss Walworth shows that his mythmaker typologies the engineer and bricoleur illustrate respectively the canonical Constructivists and artists on the movement's margins who deployed a wide range of clever make do tactics Walworth explores the relationships of Nadezhda Lamanova Esfir Shub and others with Constructivists such as Aleksei Gan Varvara Stepanova and Aleksandr Rodchenko Together the work of these artists reflected the chaotic and often contradictory zeitgeist of the decade from 1918 to 1929 and redefined the concept of mass production Reappropriated fragments of a former enemy era provided a wide range of play and possibility for these artists and the resulting propaganda porcelain film fashion and architecture tell a broader story of the unique political and economic pressures felt by their makers An engaging multidisciplinary study of objects and their makers during the Soviet Union's early years this volume highlights a group of artists who hover like free radicals at the border of existing art historical discussions of Constructivism and deepens our knowledge of Soviet art and material culture

Iconography of Power Victoria E. Bonnell, 1998-02-05 Masters at visual propaganda the Bolsheviks produced thousands of vivid and compelling posters after they seized power in October 1917 Intended for a semi literate population that was accustomed to the rich visual legacy of the Russian autocracy and the Orthodox Church political posters came to occupy a central place in the regime's effort to imprint itself on the hearts and minds of the people and to remold them into the new Soviet women and men In this first sociological study of Soviet political posters Victoria Bonnell analyzes the shifts that took place in the images messages styles and functions of political art from 1917 to 1953 Everyone who lived in Russia after the October revolution had some familiarity with stock images of the male worker the great communist leaders the collective farm woman the capitalist and others These were the new icons standardized images that depicted Bolshevik heroes and their adversaries in accordance with a fixed pattern Like other invented traditions of the modern age iconographic images in propaganda art were relentlessly repeated bringing together Bolshevik ideology and traditional mythologies of pre Revolutionary Russia Symbols and emblems featured in Soviet posters of the Civil War and the 1920s gave visual meaning to the Bolshevik worldview dominated by the concept of class Beginning in the 1930s visual propaganda became more prescriptive providing models for the appearance demeanor and conduct of the new social types both positive and negative Political art also conveyed important messages about the sacred center of the regime which evolved during the 1930s from the celebration of the heroic proletariat to the deification of Stalin Treating propaganda images as part of a particular visual language Bonnell shows how people read them relying on their habits of seeing and interpreting folk religious commercial and political art both before and after 1917 as well as the fine art traditions of Russia and the West

Drawing on monumental sculpture and holiday displays as well as posters the study traces the way Soviet propaganda art shaped the mentality of the Russian people the legacy is present even today and was itself shaped by popular attitudes and assumptions Iconography of Power includes posters dating from the final decades of the old regime to the death of Stalin located by the author in Russian American and English libraries and archives One hundred exceptionally striking posters are reproduced in the book many of them never before published Bonnell places these posters in a historical context and provides a provocative account of the evolution of the visual discourse on power in Soviet Russia Revolutionary
