consider themselves a nation of dog lovers what we have come to know as the modern dog came into existence only after a profound and relatively recent transformation in that country's social attitudes and practices In At Home and Astray Philip Howell focuses on Victorian Britain and especially London to show how the dog's changing place in society was the subject of intense debate and depended on a fascinating combination of forces even to come about Despite a relationship with humans going back thousands of years the dog only became fully domesticated and installed at the heart of the middle class home in the nineteenth century Dog breeding and showing proliferated at that time and dog ownership increased considerably At the same time the dog was increasingly policed out of public space the stray becoming the unloved counterpart of the household pet Howell shows how this redefinition of the dog's place illuminates our understanding of modernity and the city He also explores the fascinating process whereby the dog's changing role was proposed challenged and confronted and in the end conditionally accepted With a supporting cast that includes Charles Dickens Elizabeth Barrett Browning Thomas Carlyle and Charles Darwin and subjects of inquiry ranging from vivisection and the policing of rabies to pet cemeteries dog shelters and the practice of walking the dog At Home and Astray is a contribution not only to the history of animals but also to our

Linguistic pragmatism claims that what we literally say goes characteristically beyond what the linguistic properties themselves mandate In this book John Collins provides a novel defence of this doctrine arguing that linguistic meaning alone fails to fix truth conditions While this position is supported by a range of theorists Collins shows that it naturally follows from a syntactic thesis concerning the relative sparseness of what language alone can provide to semantic interpretation Language and by extension meaning provides constraints upon what a speaker can literally say but does not characteristically encode any definite thing to say Collins then defends this doctrine against a range of alternatives and objections focusing in particular on an analysis of weather reports it is raining snowing sunny Such reporting is mostly location sensitive in the sense that the utterance is true or not depending upon whether it is raining snowing sunny at the location of the utterance rather than some other location Collins offers a full analysis of the syntax semantics and pragmatics of weather reports including many novel data He shows that the constructions lack the linguistic resources to support the common literal locative readings Other related phenomena are discussed such as the Saxon genitive colour predication quantifier domain restriction and object deletion The Mercenaries: Mad Dogs and Englishmen P.
