The Uprooted Christina Elizabeth Firpo, 2016-01-31 For over a century French officials in Indochina systematically uprooted m tis children those born of Southeast Asian mothers and white African or Indian fathers from their homes In many cases and for a wide range of reasons death divorce the end of a romance a return to France or because the birth was the result of rape the father had left the child in the mother s care Although the program succeeded in rescuing homeless children from life on the streets for those in their mothers care it was disastrous Citing an 1889 French law and claiming that raising children in the Southeast Asian cultural milieu was tantamount to abandonment colonial officials sought permanent protective custody of the children placing them in state run orphanages or educational institutions to be transformed into little Frenchmen The Uprooted offers an in depth investigation of the colony s child removal program the motivations behind it reception of it and resistance to it M tis children Eurasians in particular were seen as a threat on multiple fronts colonial security white French dominance and the colonial gender order Officials feared that abandoned m tis might become paupers or prostitutes thereby undermining white prestige M tis were considered particularly vulnerable to the lure of anticolonialist movements their ambiguous racial identity and outsider status it was thought might lead them to rebellion M tis children who could pass for white also played a key role in French plans to augment their own declining numbers and reproduce the French race nation and after World War II empire French child welfare organizations continued to work in Vietnam well beyond independence until 1975 The story of the m tis children they sought to help highlights the importance and vulnerability of indigenous mothers and children to the colonial project Part of a larger historical trend the Indochina case shows striking parallels to that of Australia's Stolen Generation and the Indian and First Nations boarding schools in the United States and Canada This poignant and little known story will be of interest to scholars of French and Southeast Asian studies colonialism gender studies and the historiography of the family

Foinavon David Owen, 2013-04-11 It was the upset to end all upsets On 8 April 1967 at Aintree racecourse in Liverpool a 100/1 outsider in peculiar blinkers sidestepped chaos extraordinary even by the Grand National's standards and won the world's toughest steeplechase The jumps racing establishment and Gregory Peck the Hollywood actor whose much fancied horse was reduced to the status of an also-ran took a dim view But Foinavon the dogged victor and Susie the white nanny goat who accompanied him everywhere became instant celebrities Within days the traffic was being stopped for them in front of Buckingham Palace en route to an audience with the Duchess of Kent Fan mail arrived addressed to Foinavon England According to John Kempton Foinavon's trainer the 1967 race reminded everyone that the National was part of our heritage Foinavon's Grand National victory has become as much a part of British sporting folklore as the England football team's one and only World Cup win the previous year The race has even spawned its own mythology with the winner portrayed as a horse so useless that not even its owner or trainer could be bothered to come to Liverpool to see him run Yet remarkably the real story of how Foinavon emerged from an obscure yard near the ancient Ridgeway to pull off one of the most talked about victories in horseracing history has never been told Based on original interviews with scores of people who were at Aintree on that rainswept day or whose lives were in some way touched by the shock result this book will use the story of this extraordinary race to explore why the Grand National holds tens of millions of people spellbound year after year for ten
