Wright, 2002-05-01 An exploration of the black experience from a woman's perspective anticipating fiction by writers like Toni Morrison and Alice Walker The New York Times Originally published in 1969 to broad critical acclaim This Child's Gonna Live is an unsurpassed testament to human endurance in the face of poverty racism and despair Set in a fishing village on Maryland's Eastern Shore in the 1930s this story has as its main character the unforgettable Mariah Upshur a hard working sensual resilient woman full of hope and determination despite living in a society that conspires to keep her down In her mind she carries on a conversation with Jesus who like Mariah herself is passionate and compassionate at times funny and resolutely resilient to fatalism Often compared to Zora Neale Hurston for her lyrical and sure handed use of local dialect Wright like Hurston powerfully depicts the predicament of poor African American women who confront the multiple oppressions of class race and gender In every respect an impressive achievement The canon of American folk epic is enriched by this small masterpiece The New York Times Book Review It has always been my contention that the Black woman in America will write the greatest of the American novels For it is the Black woman forced to survive at the bottom rung of American society who is compelled to survey by the very extremity of her existence the depths of the American soul In reading Sarah Wright's searing novel I am convinced that my assessment was correct Rosa Guy author of The Friends
