Moody, 2019-12-05 The primary mission assigned to the British Army from the 1950s until the end of the Cold War was deterring Soviet aggression in Europe by demonstrating the will and capability to fight with nuclear weapons in defence of NATO territory This surreal mission was unlike any other in history and raised a number of conceptual and practical difficulties This comprehensive study observes how the British Army imagined nuclear war and how it planned to fight it Using new archival sources Simon J Moody analyses British thinking about tactical nuclear weapons the role of the Army within NATO strategy the development of theories of tactical nuclear warfare how nuclear war was taught at the Staff College the role of operational research and the evolution of the Army's nuclear war fighting doctrine He argues that the British Army possessed the intellectual capacity for organisational adaptation but that it displayed a cognitive dissonance about some of the more uncomfortable realities of nuclear war

A Strategy For Terminating A Nuclear War Clark C Abt, 2021-11-28 Avoiding a nuclear war or ending one if avoidance fails is an important but relatively unexplored aspect of nuclear doctrine Dr Abt examines the feasibility of antagonists agreeing to exclude their open cities from nuclear targeting and to replace strategic bombardment with retaliatory invasion to create less of a hair 1 trigger deterrent Critical net assessments by U S strategists and the effects of such a strategy on the Soviet Union and on U S allies are considered along with problems implementation might pose The author contends that both deterrence and the potential for limiting damage are strengthened by pre war plans for a nuclear ceasefire and stalemate short of holocaust
