

Joseph Fichter and the New Religions

Eileen Barker

London School of Economics

In his introduction to the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion 1975 symposium on the work of Joseph Fichter, Jeff Hadden listed a number of ways in which Joe had got himself into trouble by not toeing the party (that is, the Vatican) line. He ended with the words "And I am confident that there are yet more frontiers where he can still get 'in trouble'" (1975: 171). Hadden was right. There were more frontiers — and it is one of them, Fichter's encounter with the Unification Church in particular and new religious movements (NRMs) in general, that I have been asked to address in this paper.

This was by no means a one-off association with the Unification Church. Fichter's curiosity had been aroused by the adverse publicity the movement was receiving and he had accepted invitations to conferences on its theology. He soon became a familiar figure at other Unification conferences; most notably, but by no means exclusively, he attended ICUS (the annual International Conference on the Unity of the Sciences) for several years from 1977. At these gatherings, Fichter would be invited to sit at High Table and say grace at the final banquet, but many of the breaks between sessions he spent talking to Unificationists, several of whom, he discovered to his surprise, had been Catholics. His interest in the movement was further fanned by some of these erstwhile Catholics telling him that they did not actually consider themselves to be ex-Catholics, but that they now felt they could be better Christians than they had had the opportunity to be whilst they were confined to a Catholic institutional framework. He was particularly struck by the words of one Unificationist who told him "These people actually practice it." Furthermore, he became in-
