Believers: Faith in Human Nature Melvin Konner, 2019-09-10 An anthropologist examines the nature of religiosity and how it shapes and benefits humankind Believers is a scientist's answer to attacks on faith by some well meaning scientists and philosophers It is a firm rebuke of the Four Horsemen Richard Dawkins Daniel Dennett Sam Harris and Christopher Hitchens known for writing about religion as something irrational and ultimately harmful Anthropologist Melvin Konner who was raised as an Orthodox Jew but has lived his adult life without such faith explores the psychology development brain science evolution and even genetics of the varied religious impulses we experience as a species Conceding that faith is not for everyone he views religious people with a sympathetic eye his own upbringing his apprenticeship in the trance dance religion of the African Bushmen and his friends and explorations in Christian Buddhist Hindu Muslim and other faiths have all shaped his perspective Faith has always manifested itself in different ways some revelatory and comforting some kind and good some ecumenical and cosmopolitan some bigoted coercive and violent But the future Konner argues will both produce more nonbelievers and incline the religious among us holding their own by having larger families to increasingly reject prejudice and aggression A colorful weave of personal stories of religious and irreligious encounters as well as new scientific research Believers shows us that religion does much good as well as undoubted harm and that for at least a large minority of humanity the belief in things unseen neither can nor should go away

The Oxford Handbook of Evolutionary Perspectives on Violence, Homicide, and War Todd K. Shackelford, Viviana A. Weekes-Shackelford, 2012-08-23 This volume synthesizes the theoretical and empirical work of leading scholars in the evolutionary sciences to produce an extensive and authoritative review of this literature

The Biological Evolution of Religious Mind and Behavior Eckart Voland, Wulf Schiefenhövel, 2009-08-12 In a Darwinian world religious behavior just like other behaviors is likely to have undergone a process of natural selection in which it was rewarded in the evolutionary currency of reproductive success This book aims to provide a better understanding of the social scenarios in which selection pressure led to religious practices becoming an evolved human trait i.e. an adaptive answer to the conditions of living and surviving that prevailed among our prehistoric ancestors This aim is pursued by a team of expert authors from a range of disciplines Their contributions examine the relevant physiological emotional cognitive and social processes The resulting understanding of the functional interplay of these processes gives valuable insights into the biological roots and benefits of religion

Comparing Religions Jeffrey J. Kripal, Ata Anzali, Andrea R. Jain, Erin Prophet, Stefan Sanchez, 2024-03-25 Teaches students the art and practice of comparison in the globalizing world fully updated to reflect recent scholarship and major developments in the field Comparing Religions The Study of Us that Changes Us is a wholly original absorbing and provocative reimagining of the comparative study of religion in the 21st century The first textbook of its kind to foreground the extraordinary or paranormal aspects of religious experience this innovative volume reviews the fundamental tenets of the world's religions discusses the benefits and problems of comparative inquiry explores how the practice can impact a person's worldview and values and much more Asserting that religions have always engaged in comparing one another the authors provide insights into the history trends debates and questions of explicit comparativism in the modern world Easily accessible chapters examine the challenges of studying religion using a comparative approach rather than focusing on religious identity inspiring students to think seriously about religious pluralism as they engage in comparative practice Throughout the text a wealth of diverse case studies and vivid illustrations are complemented by chapter outlines summaries toolkits discussion questions and other learning features Substantially updated with new and revised material the second edition of Comparing Religions Draws from both comparative work and critical theory to present a well balanced introduction to contemporary practice Explains classic comparative themes provides a historical outline of comparative practices and offers key strategies for understanding analyzing and re reading religion Draws on a wide range of religious traditions to illustrate the complexity and efficacy of comparative practice Embraces the transcendent nature of the religious experience in all its forms including in popular culture film and television Contains a classroom proven three part structure with easy to digest thematically organized chapters Features a companion website with information on individual religious traditions additional images a glossary discussion questions and links to supplementary material Comparing Religions The Study of Us that Changes Us Second Edition is the perfect textbook for undergraduate students and faculty in comparative religion the study of religion and world religions as well as a valuable resource for general readers interested in understanding this rewarding area

Homo Symbolicus Christopher S. Henshilwood, Francesco d'Errico, 2011-11-16 The emergence of symbolic culture classically identified with the European cave paintings of the Ice Age is now seen in the light of recent groundbreaking discoveries as a complex nonlinear process taking root in a remote past and in different regions of the planet In this book the archaeologists responsible for some of these new discoveries flanked by ethologists interested in primate cognition and cultural transmission evolutionary psychologists modelling the emergence of metarepresentations as well as biologists philosophers neuro scientists and an astronomer combine their research findings Their results call into question our very conception of human nature and animal behaviour and they create epistemological bridges between disciplines that build the foundations for a novel vision of our lineage's cultural trajectory and the processes that have led to the emergence of human societies as we know them
