Religious Belief Emotional Transformat:

Religious Belief and Emotional Transformation Paul Lauritzen, 1992 Even a cursory reading of contemporary moral philosophy and theological ethics reveals that discussions in these disciplines are often far removed from the actual experiences of individuals struggling to live morally One reason for this is the general silence in most modern ethical theory about the place of emotions in the moral life In this study of the possibility of emotional moral transformation through religious belief and practice Paul Lauritzen breaks this silence and attempts to explain both why emotions have been ignored and why they must be reclaimed Drawing on work in philosophical psychology cultural anthropology and religious studies Lauritzen develops an account of emotions and of the self that allows us to see how a system of religious belief and practice may dramatically transform the emotional life of the believer He argues that emotions are not biologically basic experiences invariant from culture to culture but rather are culturally mediated artifacts that are inescapably tied to communities of belief and practice that sustain particular understandings of the self and its world To this end Lauritzen sketches a social constructivist account of human emotions and analyzes the emotion of anger in detail By comparing anger as it is found in our culture with accounts of anger in certain non Western societies the author demonstrates that emotions are crucially shaped in communities of belief and practice and are thus open to transformation with a change in belief and practice This possibility is explored at length by examining the way in which a framework of retributive justice structures the experience of anger in our culture According to Lauritzen this framework presupposes that the human condition is characterized by limited resources on the one hand and by limited generosity on the other Against this background anger will appear to be a natural retributive response to violations of individuals rights The author concludes the study by showing how given particular religious views about human life and history the framework of retributive justice may be transformed or transcended in ways that dramatically affect the emotional life of the believer BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

The Psychological Roots of Religious Belief M. D. Faber, 2010-06-03 In this insightful new study M D Faber whose previous work on the psychology of religion has won widespread critical acclaim offers a comprehensive naturalistic explanation of religious experience from the intertwining perspectives of neuroscience and developmental psychology Faber here argues that belief in God the powerful sensation of his presence and the heartfelt assent to the reality of the supernatural are all produced by the mind brain s inherent tendency to discover in religious narrative a striking memorial echo of its own biological development Although Faber maintains that we are not wired specifically for God as many contend our brain is so constructed as to make us profoundly susceptible to religious myths These myths encourage us to map our early internalized experience onto a variety of supernatural narratives with the figure of the Parent God and his angelic assistants at the center A key point of Faber s analysis is the connection between the onset of infantile amnesia during childhood s later years and the evocative power of religious mythology Although we cannot explicitly recall our earliest interactions with our parents or other caregivers religious narratives can and do jog these implicit emotional memories in an uncanny way which prompts us to accede to religion's central tenet namely that we are in the care of an omnipotent parental provider who watches over us and ministers to our needs In the final analysis religious experience attempts to recapture and to reinstate in an idealized form the symbiotic union of the early parent child relation This pioneering highly original work takes the reader to the neurological psychological bedrock of religious experience

Wittgenstein and Natural Religion Gordon Graham, 2014 Gordon Graham presents a radically innovative study of Wittgenstein's philosophy in relation to the age old impulse to connect ordinary human life with the transcendent reality of God He offers an account of its relevance to the study of religion that is completely different to the standard version of Wittgensteinian philosophy of religion expounded by both its adherents and critics Graham goes on to revitalize the philosophy of true religion an alternative though not a rival to the lively philosophical theology of Plantinga and Swinburne that currently dominates the subject This alternative style of philosophy of religion has equally deep historical roots in the philosophical works of Spinoza Hume Schleiermacher and Mill At the same time it is more easily connected to the psychological sociological and anthropological studies of William James Emile Durkheim Max Weber Mircea Eliade and Mary Douglas Graham uses Wittgenstein's conception of philosophy to argue in favour of the idea that true religion is to be understood as human participation in divine life

Emotional Transformation Therapy Steven R. Vazquez, 2012-11-02 Emotional Transformation Therapy An Interactive Ecological Psychotherapy describes an entirely original approach to psychotherapy that drastically accelerates therapeutic outcomes in terms of speed and long term effects It includes an attachment based interpersonal approach that increases the impact of the therapist client bond and is amplified by the precise use of the client's visual ecology This synthesis is called Emotional Transformation Therapy ETT Steven R Vazquez PhD discusses four techniques that therapeutically harness the client's visual ecology When the client is asked to view a maximally saturated spectral chart of colors visual feedback provides immediate diagnostic information that helps the therapist to regulate emotional intensity or loss of awareness of emotions A second technique offers an original form of directed eye movement that facilitates relief of emotional distress within minutes A third technique uses peripheral eye stimulation to rapidly reduce extreme emotional or physical pain within seconds as well as to access previously unconscious thoughts emotions or memories related to the issue or symptom The fourth technique uses the emission of precise wavelengths colors of light into the client's eyes during verbal processing that dramatically amplifies the effect of talk therapy and changes the brain in profound ways Emotional Transformation Therapy uses theory research and case studies to show how this method can be applied to depression anxiety disorders posttraumatic stress disorder and complex trauma Pre and post brain scans have shown that ETT substantially changes the human brain This method possesses the potential to revolutionize psychotherapy as we know it

Cho, 2018-03-22. The Butterfly Lovers Story, sometimes called the Chinese Romeo and Juliet, has been enduringly popular in China and Korea. In Transforming Gender and Emotion, Sookja Cho demonstrates why the Butterfly Lovers Story is more than just a popular love story. By unveiling the complexity of themes and messages concealed beneath the tale's modern classification as a tragic love story, this book reveals the tale as a rich academic subject for students of human emotions and relationships, comparative geography and culture, and narrative adaptation. By examining folk beliefs and ideas that abound in the narrative, including rebirth and a second life, the association of human souls and butterflies, and women's spiritual power, this book presents the Butterfly Lovers Story as an example of local religious narrative. The book's cross-cultural comparisons are best manifested in its discussion of a shamanic ritual narrative version from the Cheju Island of Korea, which frames the story as a catalyst for an inclusive, expansive discussion of premodern Korean and Chinese literatures and cultures. This scrutiny of the historical and cultural background behind the formation and popularization of the Cheju Island version sheds light on important issues in the Butterfly Lovers Story that are not frequently discussed, either in past examinations of this particular narrative or in the overall literary studies of China and Korea. This new, open approach presents an innovative framework for understanding premodern literary and cultural space in East Asia. Light in the Darkness_ Finding Faith During Life's
