Religious Belief In A Scientific Age:

Theology for a Scientific Age Arthur Robert Peacocke, 1993 This second expanded edition of Arthur Peacocke's seminal work now includes the author's Gifford Lectures as well as a new part three in which he deals roundly with the central corpus of Christian belief for a scientific age Distinctively theological commitments are being rethought in light of scientific apprehensions of nature Ted Peters Zygon Religious Belief in a Scientific Age Charles Robert Meyer, 1983 Belief in God in an Age of Science John Polkinghorne, 1998-03-30 John Polkinghorne is a major figure in today's debates over the compatibility of science and religion Internationally known as both a theoretical physicist and a theologian the only ordained member of the Royal Society Polkinghorne brings unique qualifications to his inquiry into the possibilities of believing in God in an age of science In this thought provoking book the author focuses on the collegiality between science and theology contending that these intellectual cousins are both concerned with interpreted experience and with the quest for truth about reality He argues eloquently that scientific and theological inquiries are parallel The book begins with a discussion of what belief in God can mean in our times Polkinghorne explores a new natural theology and emphasizes the importance of moral and aesthetic experience and the human intuition of value and hope In other chapters he compares science's struggle to understand the nature of light with Christian theology's struggle to understand the nature of Christ He addresses the question Does God act in the physical world And he extends his ideas about the role of chaos theory surveys the prospects for future dialogue between scientific and theological thinkers and defends a critical realist understanding of the activities of both disciplines Polkinghorne concludes with a consideration of the nature of mathematical truths and the links between the complementary realities of physical and mental experience The Big Questions in Science and Religion Keith Ward, 2008-05 Can religious beliefs survive in the scientific age Are they resoundingly outdated Or is there something in them of great importance even if the way they are expressed will have to change given new scientific context These questions are among those at the core of the science religion dialogue An Anglican priest who was once an atheist offers compelling insights into the often contentious relationship between diverse religious views and new scientific knowledge He identifies ten basic questions about the nature of the universe and human life Among these are Does the universe have a goal or purpose Do the laws of nature exclude miracles Can science provide a wholly naturalistic explanation for moral and religious beliefs Has science made belief in God obsolete Are there any good science based arguments for God Ward considers concepts from Buddhism Confucianism Taoism Islam Hinduism Judaism and Christianity while featuring the speculations of cosmologists physicians mathematicians and philosophers God in the Age of Science? Herman Philipse, 2012-02-23 God in the Age of Science is a critical examination of strategies for the philosophical defence of religious belief The main options may be presented as the end nodes of a decision tree for religious believers The faithful can interpret a creedal statement e.g. God exists either as a truth claim or otherwise If it is a truth claim they can either be warranted to endorse it without evidence or not Finally if evidence is needed should its evidential support be assessed by the same logical criteria that we use in evaluating evidence in science or not Each of these options has been defended by prominent analytic philosophers of religion In part I Herman Philipse assesses these options and argues that the most promising for believers who want to be justified in accepting their creed in our scientific age is the Bayesian cumulative case strategy developed by Richard Swinburne Parts II and III are devoted to an in depth analysis of this case for theism Using a strategy of subsidiary arguments Philipse concludes 1 that theism cannot be stated meaningfully 2 that if theism were meaningful it would have no predictive power concerning existing evidence so that Bayesian arguments cannot get started and 3 that if the Bayesian cumulative case strategy did work one should conclude that atheism is more probable than theism Philipse provides a careful rigorous and original critique of theism in the world today Scientific Explanation and Religious Belief Michael G. D. Yarnold, 2024-11-15 First published in 1959 the original blurb reads No good purpose is served today by treating the relationship between Christianity and the natural sciences as a conflict even as a conflict to be resolved The modern world is passing through a crisis of far reaching proportions which is the direct consequence of its inability to assimilate new scientific knowledge and to direct rightly the new technical skills The crisis which is essentially spiritual in character is examined in its three principal aspects Accordingly the first part of the book deals with our understanding of the order of nature the second with some of the central doctrines of the Christian faith and the final section with the pressing ethical and moral problems of the industrial and nuclear age Today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context This book is a re issue originally published in 1959 The language used and views portrayed are a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication Religion in an Age of Science Ian G.
