

The background of the entire image is a dark, monochromatic photograph of a night landscape. A thin, bright crescent moon is positioned in the upper center of the frame. Below the moon, a dense line of evergreen trees, likely spruce or fir, stretches across the horizon. The trees are silhouetted against the dark sky, with some showing more detail than others. The overall mood is quiet and mysterious.

Remote Borderland Transylvania In The Hungarian Imagination Suny Series In National Identities:

The Remote Borderland Laszlo Kurti, 2001-07-19 Explores how Transylvania figures in the Hungarian imagination and how this border region functions in the creation of national identity

The Remote Borderland Laszlo Kurti, 2001-07-19 The Remote Borderland explores the significance of the contested region of Transylvania to the creation of Hungarian national identity Author L szl K rti illustrates the process by which European intellectuals politicians and artists locate their nation s territory embody it with meaning and reassert its importance at various historical junctures The book s discussion of the contested and negotiated nature of nationality in its East Central European setting reveals cultural assumptions profoundly mortgaged to twentieth century notions of home nation state and people The Remote Borderland shows that it is not only important to recognize that nations are imagined but to note how and where they are imagined in order to truly understand the transformation of European societies during the twentieth century
