Mediating And Negotiating Marital Conflicts:

Mediating and Negotiating Marital Conflicts Desmond Ellis, Noreen Stuckless, 1996-08-20 Conflicts associated with marital separation and divorce have traditionally been settled by lawyers through negotiations. Since 1980 in the United States an increasing proportion of these conflicts have been settled or resolved through the process of marital conflict mediation. Critics of mediation contend that the process fails to protect women from violent partners and that agreements neutralize the impact of gender based power imbalances. Mediators argue that it is lawyers who are responsible for escalating conflict and that the legal process is costly and causes stressful delays in the separation process. The authors of this volume find that these arguments are ideologically driven and rarely supported by empirical research. Therapeutic Family Mediation Howard H. Irving, Michael Benjamin, 2002-06-12 Designed as a practical hands on manual or text for students and professors of social work. Readers will learn how to analyze conflict situations and develop theory based strategies that can be used to intervene in an ethical and effective manner. Examples and exercises demonstrate how to apply conflict resolution skills when working with individuals, families, groups, organizations and diverse communities. Conflict Resolution for the Helping Professions is the only current conflict resolution textbook designed specifically for social work, psychology, criminal justice, counseling and related professions. The Blackwell Handbook of Mediation Margaret S. Herrman, 2009-02-09 This handbook invites readers who are interested in mediation, negotiation and conflict resolution to share the perspectives of experts in the field.
