Medical Readiness Efforts Are Underway For Dod Training In Civilian Trauma Centers:

Medical Readiness Carol R. Schuster,1999-07 Medical Readiness United States. General Accounting Office,1998

Medical Readiness Efforts are Underway for DOD Training in Civilian Trauma Centers ,1998 Military medical personnel have almost no chance during peacetime to practice their battlefield trauma care skills As a result physicians both within and outside the Department of Defense DOD believe that military medical personnel are not prepared to provide trauma care to severely injured soldiers in wartime which could result in the loss of lives and limbs Because DOD must be better prepared to deliver trauma care during wartime Congress enacted legislation in 1996 requiring DOD to implement a demonstration program that would provide trauma care training for military medical personnel through one or more public or nonprofit hospitals This report responds to a requirement in that legislation that GAO evaluate the effectiveness of the demonstration program Specifically GAO 1 determined the status of the demonstration program and DOD s actions to meet the legislative provisions 2 identified other initiatives aimed at training military personnel in trauma care and 3 identified key issues that DOD should address if it decides to expand its trauma care training program Medical readiness efforts are underway for DOD training in civilian trauma centers : report to congressional committees ,1998 Nsiad-98-75 Medical Readiness

General Accounting Office,1998*

U.S. Army Medical Department Journal ,2010 Maintaining Military Medical Skills During Peacetime Christine Eibner,2008-01-14 Military medical personnel are tasked with fulfilling both the benefits mission and the readiness mission of the U S Department of Defense DoD However the medical skills required during deployment are likely to differ significantly from those required during peacetime This study explored an arrangement in which some personnel are stationed in nonmilitary settings where the case mix might more closely resemble that expected under deployment VA's Ability to Respond to DOD Contingencies and National Emergencies United States. Congress. House. Committee on Veterans' Affairs,2002 VA'S ABILITY TO RESPOND TO DOD..., HEARING... SERIAL NO. 107-14... COMMITTEE ON VETERANS'..., HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES... 107TH CONGRESS, 1ST ,2003 A National Trauma Care

System National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on the Health of Select Populations,Board on Health Sciences Policy,Committee on Military Trauma Care's Learning Health System and Its Translation to the Civilian Sector,2016-09-12 Advances in trauma care have accelerated over the past decade spurred by the significant burden of injury from the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq Between 2005 and 2013 the case fatality rate for United States service members injured in Afghanistan decreased by nearly 50 percent despite an increase in the severity of injury

among U S troops during the same period of time But as the war in Afghanistan ends knowledge and advances in trauma care developed by the Department of Defense DoD over the past decade from experiences in Afghanistan and Iraq may be lost This would have implications for the quality of trauma care both within the DoD and in the civilian setting where adoption of military advances in trauma care has become increasingly common and necessary to improve the response to multiple civilian casualty events Intentional steps to codify and harvest the lessons learned within the military s trauma system are needed to ensure a ready military medical force for future combat and to prevent death from survivable injuries in both military and civilian systems This will require partnership across military and civilian sectors and a sustained commitment from trauma system leaders at all levels to assure that the necessary knowledge and tools are not lost A National Trauma Care System defines the components of a learning health system necessary to enable continued improvement in trauma care in both the civilian and the military sectors This report provides recommendations to ensure that lessons learned over the past decade from the military s experiences in Afghanistan and Iraq are sustained and built upon for future combat operations and translated into the U S civilian system

Chemical and biological defense DOD needs to clarify expectations for medical readiness. ,2001 This testimony is based on GAO s report on DOD s preparations for medical support for chemical and biological casualties In the report is the response to requests that GAO determine how DOD had adapted its medical personnel to emerging chemical and biological threats Specifically GAO looked at how DOD and the services had addressed chemical and biological threats in the distribution of medical personnel across specialties Also looked at was the extent of training for medical personnel in the treatment of chemical and biological casualties

The Economics of Air Force Medical Service Readiness John C. Graser,Daniel Blum,Kevin Brancato,2010-12

The Air Force Medical Service AFMS currently runs three in theater hospitals for severely injured or wounded personnel Part of the practioners preparation was treating DoD beneficiaries for a broad range of injuries and illnesses Opportunities for this preparation are not as numerous in house as they once were and AFMS does not always get proper credit for those gained elsewhere Proper credit for that work is important for funding
