People's history and socialist theory Raphael Samuel, 1981 The Hill Horace Annesley Vachell, 1913 International Journal of Oral History , 1985 Development of Social Theory James Pendleton Lichtenberger, 1923 Is All the World a Text? Geoff Eley, 1990 History Curatorship Gaynor Kavanagh, 1990 Kavanagh offers a framework for current and future museum action and argues the case for imaginative relevant curatorship responsive to the evidence of social change She also argues for a more caring and cooperative relationship with the public and with museum visitors A History of Social Thought Emory Stephen Bogardus, 1922 Town and Countryside in the Transvaal Belinda Bozzoli, 1983 Rescuing Creusa Marilyn B. Skinner, 1987 A History of the English People: 1895-1905 Élie Halévy, 1929 The Pursuit of History John Tosh, 1991 Written for undergraduate students in history this text focuses on the representation of that past in the work of historians The author argues that students need to be aware of the limits placed on historical knowledge by the character of the sources and the working methods of historians Intended to explore a number of general propositions about history and historians the book says that history is a subject of practical social relevance and that the proper performance of its function depends on a receptive and discriminating attitude to other disciplines especially the social sciences All historical enquiry whatever the source of its inspiration must be conducted in accordance with the rigorous critical method which is the hallmark of modern academic history The author tries to place these claims in the context of recent debate among historians Labour History Review Society for the Study of Labour History, 1990 Making City Histories in Museums Gaynor Kavanagh, Elizabeth Frostick, 1998 Museums are city phenomenon one element within a suite of cultural institutions which most major urban centres support However museums now have a very different agenda from the time of their establishment in the nineteenth century While the majority of cities have museums dedicated to exploring the city itself the approach and range of interests vary enormously What these museums have in common is a commitment to construct or propose an appropriate image of the city which can be engaged with by a broad spectrum of people The contributors consider the making of city histories from very different perspectives and within a number of theoretical frameworks They use case studies and comparisons of practice In particular good practice is highlighted and potential ways forward explored

New Socialist ,1986 Re-viewing Television History Helen Wheatley,2007-10-24 Written by leading scholars in the field this book is an internationally relevant cutting edge reassessment of both current methods and practices in television historiography and of assumptions about television history itself The book focuses on debates about the canon on institutions texts and audiences and the interconnections between these distinct areas Through discussions and case studies it covers a wide selection from television s approaches to immigration and natural history to economic histories of television the framing of television aesthetics and problems in constructing a television canon Each section opens with the editor s overview of the historical research and an appendix details the main research resources for television historians in the UK Proceedings Indian History Congress,1983 The Lancashire Working Classes Trevor Griffiths,2001 Overall Griffiths has produced a significant and valuable addition to the ongoing discussion of working class development as well as an extensive survey of Lancashire working class attitudes activities and lifestyles In so doing he has extended but not concluded the ongoing debate History Extensive and meticulous examination of the Lancashire working class an important and informative study History Original and compelling Martin Pugh BBC History Magazine Griffiths marshalls an impressive range of documentary evidence to argue for the continuities of key aspects of working class life over this fifty year period a particularly interesting chapter on the labour market and the search for work English Historical Review Gives a fascinating insight into the realities of working class life incisive Contemporary Review This book explores the formation of working class identities in the period 1880 1930 as reflected in changes in work and industrial relations family life patterns of saving and changing political allegiances Trevor Griffiths challenges the notion that the period witnessed the emergence of a more united sense of class among British workers Instead the picture emerges of a working class for whom the ties of work and neighbourhood counted for less than those of religion and nationality Italian Books and Periodicals ,1939
