Perception and Misperception in International Politics, 1976 This study of perception and misperception in foreign policy was a landmark in the application of cognitive psychology to political decision making The New York Times called it in an article published nearly ten years after the book's appearance the seminal statement of principles underlying political psychology The perspective established by Jervis remains an important counterpoint to structural explanations of international politics and from it has developed a large literature on the psychology of leaders and the problems of decision making under conditions of incomplete information stress and cognitive bias Jervis begins by describing the process of perception for example how decision makers learn from history and then explores common forms of misperception such as overestimating one's influence Finally he tests his ideas through a number of important events in international relations from nineteenth and twentieth century European history

Neoclassical Realist Theory of International Politics Norrin M. Ripsman, Jeffrey W. Taliaferro, Steven E. Lobell, 2016 Neoclassical realism is a major theoretical approach to the study of foreign policy In Neoclassical Realist Theory of International Relations Norrin M Ripsman Jeffrey W Taliaferro and Steven E Lobell argue that it can explain and predict a far broader range of political phenomena in international politics Neoclassical realism challenges other approaches including structural realism liberalism and constructivism

Economic Interdependence and War Dale C.

Copeland, 2014-11-02 Does growing economic interdependence among great powers increase or decrease the chance of conflict and war Liberals argue that the benefits of trade give states an incentive to stay peaceful Realists contend that trade compels states to struggle for vital raw materials and markets Moving beyond the stale liberal realist debate Economic Interdependence and War lays out a dynamic theory of expectations that shows under what specific conditions interstate commerce will reduce or heighten the risk of conflict between nations Taking a broad look at cases spanning two centuries from the Napoleonic and Crimean wars to the more recent Cold War crises Dale Copeland demonstrates that when leaders have positive expectations of the future trade environment they want to remain at peace in order to secure the economic benefits that enhance long term power When however these expectations turn negative leaders are likely to fear a loss of access to raw materials and markets giving them more incentive to initiate crises to protect their commercial interests The theory of trade expectations holds important implications for the understanding of Sino American relations since 1985 and for the direction these relations will likely take over the next two decades Economic Interdependence and War offers sweeping new insights into historical and contemporary global politics and the actual nature of democratic versus economic peace

Paradoxes of Strategic Intelligence Richard K.

Betts, Thomas Mahnken, 2004-08-02 Part of a three part collection in honour of the teachings of Michael I Handel one of the foremost strategists of the late 20th century this collection explores the paradoxes of intelligence analysis surprise and deception from both historical and theoretical perspectives Coercion, Cooperation, and Ethics in International Relations

Richard Ned Lebow, 2007-05-07 This volume brings together the recent essays of Richard Ned Lebow one of the leading scholars of international relations and US foreign policy Lebow's work has centred on the instrumental value of ethics in foreign policy decision making and the disastrous consequences which follow when ethical standards are flouted Unlike most realists who have considered ethical considerations irrelevant in states calculations of their national interest Lebow has argued that self interest and hence national interest can only be formulated intelligently within a language of justice and morality The essays here build on this pervasive theme in Lebow's work by presenting his substantive and compelling critique of strategies of deterrence and compellence illustrating empirically and normatively how these strategies often produce results counter to those that are intended The last section of the book on counterfactuals brings together another set of related articles which continue to probe the relationship between ethics and policy They do so by exploring the contingency of events to suggest the subjective and often self fulfilling nature of the frameworks we use to evaluate policy choices Power and the Purse

Jean-Marc F. Blanchard, Edward D. Mansfield, Norrin M. Ripsman, 2014-06-03 The essays here address the relationship between economic interdependence and international conflict the political economy of economic sanctions and the role of economic incentives in international statecraft AMERICA WINS IN FOREIGN POLICY BUT FAILS IN DOMESTIC POLICY

Dr. George Joseph K. PhD, 2015-12-05 The ultimate defeat of a nation begins at home When the ethical values of the people at the personal family and social levels degenerate the spiritual intellectual and physical health of the nation also gets weakened Mankind has only two kinds of core values some religions command to love even the enemies while others command to kill the enemies USA is not just the most powerful nation in the world It is also the most coveted society in the world because of its highest quality value system due to Biblical Christian faith Ultimately there is only one God one mankind one problem one solution and hence there can have only one value system for mankind But the shadow of a great global tension and suicidal mutual conflict caused by the many contradictory god views religions worldviews truth claims ideologies and value systems is right now visible Defending the high ideal of loving the enemies could be easy But the ultimate challenge of foreign policy is about practicing the high ideals of the nation even in the process of defending those ideals in a crooked and inimical world The biggest dilemma in US foreign policy is whether it can practice its value of even loving its enemies and still exist as a nation to defend its values Practicing the values and defending the values should go hand in hand A very judicious combination of practicing the values and defending those who hold the value system are essential due to individual eternal consequences To defend the values of freedom unfortunately the USA had to succumb to death and murder during the cold war in effect failing to practice its values in the process of defending it Hence the struggle confronting individuals from the family level to the international levels is the struggle of practicing the high values at the real life situations The shocking truth is that victorious Christian life always demands self sacrifice But there are false gods religions and value systems whose followers don t have to follow any of these values and hence have an easy life It is high time to realize that anything that comes in the name of any god religion or worldview is not safe The core values function as the touchstone for testing the quality of any god religion worldview or truth claim Mankind cannot peacefully survive if communities of people don t have good values and morality to practice Faulty definitions of freedom and secularism have led to the growth of evil to such levels where now people will have to resort to killing for survival Hence the state governments must implement the right view of secularism It will be suicidal to any society to allow anyone to promote evil values in the name of religious freedom and secularism It should become the primary responsibility of the supreme legal system in any nation to examine the basic documents of the religions identify and declare which ones contain unhealthy values affecting the character of the people The State should not allow any group to promote and practice unhealthy values in the label of any religion The values of the Christian faith are undeniable that no legal system can deny these values and the evils which Christian faith prohibits no legal system can approve It stands for loving enemy and telling the truth Those who reject Christian faith can never stand on a more logical faith It is written in the Bible that Jesus died on the cross for mankind and rose from the dead on the third day Those who have the wisdom to believe these plain facts will be able to believe that Jesus is in fact the true God in human form and will worship Him

Conflict After the Cold War Richard K.

Betts,2015-09-16 Edited by one of the most renowned scholars in the field Richard Betts Conflict After the Cold War assembles classic and contemporary readings on enduring problems of international security Offering broad historical and philosophical breadth the carefully chosen and excerpted selections in this popular reader help students engage key debates over the future of war and the new forms that violent conflict will take Conflict After the Cold War encourages closer scrutiny of the political economic social and military factors that drive war and peace How States Think John J.

Mearsheimer,Sebastian Rosato,2023-09-05 A groundbreaking examination of a central question in international relations Do states act rationally To understand world politics you need to understand how states think Are states rational Much of international relations theory assumes that they are But many scholars believe that political leaders rarely act rationally The issue is crucial for both the study and practice of international politics for only if states are rational can scholars and policymakers understand and predict their behavior John J Mearsheimer and Sebastian Rosato argue that rational decisions in international politics rest on credible theories about how the world works and emerge from deliberative decision making processes Using these criteria they conclude that most states are rational most of the time even if they are not always successful Mearsheimer and Rosato make the case for their position examining whether past and present world leaders including George W Bush and Vladimir Putin have acted rationally in the context of momentous historical events including both world wars the Cold War and the post Cold War era By examining this fundamental concept in a novel and comprehensive manner Mearsheimer and Rosato show how leaders think and how to make policy for dealing with other states Conflict After the Cold War Richard Betts,2021-12-30 Edited by one of the most renowned scholars in the field

Richard K Betts s Conflict After the Cold War assembles classic and contemporary readings on enduring problems of international security Offering broad historical and philosophical breadth the carefully chosen and excerpted selections in this popular reader help students engage in key debates over the future of war and the new forms that violent conflict will take Conflict After the Cold War encourages closer scrutiny of the political economic social and military factors that drive war and peace New to the Sixth Edition Eight new readings covering issues that have grown in salience since the previous edition or that present new interpretations of answers to old problems including pieces by Robert Kagan Edward O Wilson Scott D Sagan Robert Jervis and Jason Healey Jacqueline L Hazelton Oystein Tunsjo and Michael Beckley Updated volume and chapter introductions and a new reading by Richard K Betts Threats and Promises James W. Davis,2003-05-01

Conventional wisdom dictates that the conditions of international politics require states to pursue tough strategies based on threats ruling out soft strategies such as reassurances or appeasement In Threats and Promises James W Davis Jr works toward a theory of influence in international politics that recognizes the power of promises and assurances as tools of statecraft Davis offers an analytic treatment of promises and assurances drawing on relevant strands of international relations theory and deterrence theory as well as cognitive and social psychology Building on prospect theory from cognitive psychology he develops a testable theory of influence that suggests promises are most effective when potential aggressors are motivated by a desire to avoid loss Davis then considers a series of case studies drawn principally from German diplomatic relations in the later nineteenth and early twentieth century From the case studies which focus on such issues as European stability colonial competition and the outbreak of the First World War Davis shows how a blending of threats and promises according to reasoned principles can lead to a new system of more creative statecraft While many critical analyses exist on the use of threats there are relatively few on the use of promises Davis argues that promises have been central to outcomes that were previously attributed to the successful use of deterrent threats as well as the resolution of many crises where threats failed to deter aggression Threats and Promises challenges the conventional wisdom and is an original contribution to the field of international politics

The Bear Watches the Dragon Alexander Lukin, 2003 China and Russia two giants dominating the Eurasian landmass share a history of understanding and misunderstanding whose nuances are not well appreciated by outsiders In his interpretation of this relationship from the Russian point of view Alexander Lukin shows how over the course of three centuries China has seemed alternately to threaten mystify imitate mirror and rival its northern neighbor Lukin traces not only the changing dynamics of Russian Chinese relations but the ways in which Russia's images of China more profoundly reflected Russia's self perception and its perceptions of the West as well As both Russia and China take distinctive approaches to political and economic development and integration in the twenty first century global economy this reinterpretation of their relationship is timely and valuable not only to historians but to all students of international affairs

Perceptions of China and White House Decision-Making, 1941-1963 Adam S.R. Bartley, 2019-11-26 This book assesses and evaluates the decision making behavior of United States presidents and their chief advisers from Roosevelt to Kennedy pertaining to China Seeking to dispel with the notion that each administration sought policy outcomes on the basis of a rational decision making model Bartley highlights the contradictions of adopted presidential decision making processes and the nature of domestic politics as playing prejudicial and debilitating roles The book demonstrates that elite decision making processes interacted with assumptions made about Chinese behavior interests and attitudes only superficially and in some cases not at all Misinformation and misperception were the natural outcomes Reinforced by the politics of McCarthyism at home intellectual debate on China policy was squashed parochialism and nuance were shunned and information was closed off Ultimately a divorce between the norm of behavior and the search for rational policy was registered in each administration The net result was a lasting and destructive cognitive dissonance to fit expectations of a China reality constructed information was ignored overlooked and distorted Offering new insights into the China policies of consecutive administrations from 1941 to 1963 this volume will be of great interest to scholars and students of American foreign policy security studies and international relations
