Medical Education in the New Millennium Amal A. El-Moamly, 2010 The medical education community has witnessed lately several trends and innovations in medical education curricula however the application of the controversial Problem Based Learning PBL strategy in medical schools was the most widely known major curricular intervention in the last century In recent years PBL effectiveness its research studies and research in medical education field in general has been a subject of considerable interest and debate Although the research is still inconclusive there is good evidence that PBL approach delivers on some very important issues This book highlights how the integrity and quality of the research studies in medical education especially those that evaluated the PBL approach have evoked many controversial issues Basics in Medical Education Zubair Amin, Hoon Eng Khoo, 2009 Medical education the art and science behind medical teaching and learning has progressed remarkably Teaching and learning have become more scientific and rigorous curricula are based on sound pedagogical principles and problem based and other forms of active and self directed learning have become the mainstream We have progressed from the role of problem identifier to that of solution provider This book provides a balanced overview of the why of medical education emphasizing the need for change and adaptation and the how by demonstrating the way concepts and theories of medical education can be of immediate benefit to the medical teacher In this improved second edition student assessment curriculum outcome based education clinical teaching and problem based learning receive more emphasis with the addition of new chapters essential updates and consolidation The tone is more pragmatic with implementable examples and incorporation of newer evidence and better practices However one thing has not changed the book still targets medical teachers without a formal background in education Contents Historical Overview of Medical Education Global and Regional Perspectives in Medical Education Change Process and Role of Leadership Learning Concepts and Philosophies Curricular Design and Planning Educational Outcomes Teaching and Learning Methodology General Clinical PBL Assessment of Students Program Evaluation Research in Medical Education Glossary and Further Resources Medical Education for the Future Alan Bleakley, John Bligh, Julie Browne, 2011-02-21 The purpose of medical education is to benefit patients by improving the work of doctors Patient centeredness is a centuries old concept in medicine but there is still a long way to go before medical education can truly be said to be patient centered Ensuring the centrality of the patient is a particular challenge during medical education when students are still forming an identity as trainee doctors and conservative attitudes towards medicine and education are common amongst medical teachers making it hard to bring about improvements How can teachers policy makers researchers and doctors bring about lasting change that will restore the patient to the heart of medical education The authors experienced medical educators explore the role of the patient in medical education in terms of identity power and location Using innovative political philosophical cultural and literary critical frameworks that have previously never been applied so consistently to the field the authors provide a fundamental reconceptualisation of medical teaching and learning with an emphasis upon learning at the bedside and in the clinic They offer a wealth of practical and conceptual insights into the three way relationship between patients students and teachers setting out a radical and exciting approach to a medical education for the future The authors provide us with a masterful reconceptualization of medical education that challenges traditional notions about teaching and learning The book critiques current practices and offers new approaches to medical education based upon sociocultural research and theory This thought provoking narrative advances the case for reform and is a must read for anyone involved in medical education David M Irby PhD Vice Dean for Education University of California San Francisco School of Medicine and co author of Educating Physicians A Call for Reform of Medical School and Residency

International Handbook of Research in Medical Education Geoffrey R. Norman, Cees P.M. van der Vleuten, D.I. Newble, 2012-12-06. GEOFF NORMAN, McMaster University, Hamilton, Canada; CEES VAN DER VLEUTEN, University of Maastricht, Netherlands; DAVID NEWBLE, University of Sheffield, England. The International Handbook of Research in Medical Education is a review of current research findings and contemporary issues in health sciences education. The orientation is toward research evidence as a basis for informing policy and practice in education. Although most of the research findings have accrued from the study of medical education, the handbook will be useful to teachers and researchers in all health professions and others concerned with professional education. The handbook comprises 33 chapters organized into six sections: Research Traditions; Learning; The Educational Continuum; Instructional Strategies; Assessment; and Implementing the Curriculum. The research orientation of the handbook will make the book an invaluable resource to researchers and scholars and should help practitioners to identify research to place their educational decisions on a sound empirical footing.

THE FIELD OF RESEARCH IN MEDICAL EDUCATION The discipline of medical education began in North America more than thirty years ago with the founding of the first office in medical education at Buffalo, New York, by George Miller in the early 1960s. Soon after, large offices were established in medical schools in Chicago, University of Illinois, Los Angeles, University of Southern California, and Lansing, Michigan State University. All these first-generation offices mounted master's level programs in medical education, and many of their graduates went on to found offices at other schools.

Fifty Years of Findings from the Jefferson Longitudinal Study of Medical Education Joseph S. Gonnella, Clara A. Callahan, J. Jon Veloski, Jennifer DeSantis, Mohammadreza Hojat, 2022-01-01. This book assembles research findings accumulated over the span of half a century from the Jefferson Longitudinal Study (JLS). This study, initiated in 1970, is the most comprehensive, extensive, and uninterrupted longitudinal study of medical students and graduates maintained in a single medical school. The study was based on the conviction that medical schools have a social responsibility and ethical obligation to monitor the quality of their educational programs, to assess their educational outcomes, and to ensure that their educational goals have been achieved for the purposes of public safety. The JLS has resulted in a large number of publications in professional, peer-reviewed journals and presentations in national and international meetings. Some medical schools have expressed interest in learning more about the JLS, requesting copies of the instruments we used in the study, information about how to set up a longitudinal study of medical education, and other needed resources. In response to a request from Academic Medicine, 2011; 86(3):p 404, we prepared and published in that journal a schematic snapshot of the JLS for those interested in a model for the development of a longitudinal study of medical students and graduates. The JLS is well known to the medical education research communities A recent Google search using keywords Jefferson Longitudinal Study resulted in 1 550 000 hits an indication of its broad popularity among researchers At the present time the JLS database contains academic information assessments and educational and career outcomes for 13 343 medical students and graduates of Sidney Kimmel formerly Jefferson Medical College of Thomas Jefferson University There are presently 502 variables in the JLS analytic database This book presents a collection of 207 abstracts of major publications from peerreviewed journals books and book chapters in which data and information from the JLS were used In this book we classified the abstracts based on their primary contents into the following categories Admissions of the Applicants to Medical School e g standardized tests academic preparation other admission variables Demographic Composition e g gender age race ethnicity Performance Evaluations in Medical School e g preclinical and clinical phases Postgraduate and Career e g assessment of clinical competence in residency training career choice specialization professional activities Psychosocial Attributes e g personal qualities indicators of physical and mental well being Professionalism e g assessment of elements of professionalism in medicine such as clinical empathy attitudes toward interprofesssional collaboration and orientation
