Penelope Rebecca Harrington, 2012-08-07

When Penelope O'Shaunessy, an incoming freshman of average height and lank hair, steps into Harvard Yard for the first time, she has lots of advice from her mother: Don't be too enthusiastic, don't talk to people who seem to be getting annoyed, and for heaven's sake, stop playing Tetris on your phone at parties. Penelope needs this advice. She is the kind of girl who passes through much of her life with coffee spilled on her white shirt, who can't quite tell when people are joking and who inevitably always says the wrong thing. But no amount of coaching will prepare Penelope for the people she meets at school. Gloriously skewering the social hierarchy of college, Penelope is the brilliantly funny story of one of the most singular, memorable heroines in recent fiction.

Penelopethe Preposterous Birthday Party Sheri Radford, 2009-03

Penelope's having a birthday party; everyone's invited. But as her parents quickly realize, Penelope really did invite everyone. As ballerinas leap through the air, ponies meander through the kitchen, soccer players kick penalty shots in the living room, an elephant makes himself at home, Penelope's flabbergasted parents find increasingly dramatic words to describe the growing chaos. Even though Penelope meant well by not leaving anyone out, it's clear that this birthday bash has gone berserk, bonkers, bananas. So ring the doorbell, join Penelope's party. With this birthday girl, it's bound to be a blast. This is the third book in the award-winning Penelope series, which also includes Penelopethe Monsters, which the Vancouver Sun called comedy gold. Both parents and kids can relate to Penelopethe Humongous Burp, a Canadian Toy Testing Council Great Books of the Year selection. Sheri Radford is a British Columbian through and through. Born in New Westminster and raised in Ladysmith, she also called Victoria home for several years. Sheri can't remember a time in her life when she wasn't writing. She started creating stories for children after reading at least a zillion picture books out loud to her younger siblings. Currently, she lives in Vancouver, British Columbia, and is the editor of WHERE Vancouver.
